Long Beach Park Deal Kept Secret

Provincial government officials have thrown a curtain of secrecy around a deal which will see land worth $50,000 acquired for a park at Long Beach in exchange for $280,000 worth of timber in Strathcona Park.

The plan was approved by B.C. cabinet yesterday and has details were outlined in an order-in-council.

But it was learned that Recreation Minister E. C. Westwood and deputy minister David Turner had ordered that nothing could be said about the deal last night.

ANOTHER STEP

It is believed the land transaction is another step towards the creation of a ocean-frontage park the full 10-mile length of Long Beach, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The parks branch already has several park reserves in the Long Beach-Schooner Cove area.

TWO PIECES

Under the terms of the order-in-council the Bedwell River Timber Company offered to exchange two pieces of Long Beach property for timber of equal value.

The value was appraised at $50,000.

Timber was offered the company in the Bedwell River area in Strathcona Park.

It was stated that the cutting of the timber in the park would not impair the beauty of the area.

200 Acres Bought

City Gets Land For Green Belt

By PETER BRUTON

Capital Improvement District Commission has been quietly buying up land along the Island Highway since January to provide a green belt for the city.

So far about 200 acres of land has been purchased at a cost of more than $70,000.

The green belt will stretch over much of the land on both sides of the Island Highway between Goldstream Park and Thetis Park.

The land will remain in its natural state forever.

The government-supported CIDC, charged with the beautification of B.C.'s capital city, managed to acquire only half of the property wanted.

REFUSE TO SELL

Some owners refused to sell; others wanted exorbitant prices.

But the CIDC is hopeful of getting more and more property in the general area as time goes by.

"Victoria will be one of the few places in North America where drivers can approach the city through natural scenery," said CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown.

TOO LATE

"We should have done this on Douglas Street years ago," added CIDC member L. J. Wallace.

U.S. Marines Given Order To Land in Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — At Thailand's request, 1,800 United States Marines came ashore Thursday for the buildup of a Southeast Asia combat force in this key pro-Western country which borders Communist-threatened Laos.

In the vanguard were United States Marines and Air Force jet attack planes sent from bases in the Philippines. They were due here today.

PLANES FIRST

In Washington, the defence department said that marine A-1H jet attack planes and air force F-105 jet fighter bombers will be the first elements reaching Thailand.

The Pentagon did not specify the number of aircraft involved in the squadron of marine Skyhawk planes and air force Super Sabres. Normally, a squadron of this sort numbers between 20 and 25 aircraft.

TROOPS FLEE

From Communist-infested Laos, Royal Lao troops fled while continued fleeing across the Thai border in the face of a Red sweep.

But even before the announcement of the impending landing of marines—as requested by Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat—there were signs that Communist rebels in northwest Laos were starting a pull-back from Thailand's border.

And abroad, the big powers carried on top-level diplomatic contacts over the turn of events.

Force of U.S. marines is scheduled to go ashore at Bangkok naval base Thursday morning. Shaded portion of map shows Communist-dominated areas of Southeast Asia.

John D Blasted For 'Red Smear'

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin last night blasted Prime Minister John Diefenbaker for inferring that Lester Pearson was soft on communism.

The prime minister was guilty of statements unworthy of any Canadian, said Mr. Martin in a speech to 150 people at Oak Bay Junior High School last night.

'FACES DEFEAT'

"He was demeaning himself and demeaning his office by attacking any man who has served this generation and this country so well as Mr. Pearson," he said. "This is an indication of a man who realizes he faces defeat."

'NOT RECOGNIZED'

Mr. Martin was referring to statements attributed to the prime minister in a speech in Manitoba last week. The prime minister was reported as saying that neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Martin had recognized the problem or the tyranny of the Soviet Union.

"The office of prime minister is a treasured dignity and it is incumbent on any who fills that office to live up to its traditions," said Mr. Martin.

He listed dates and speeches back to 1940 to show that Mr. Pearson had consistently

Jobs Pledge For All By Douglas

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Staff Writer

PORT ALBERT — In an emotion-charged 83-minute speech last night, National Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas told a crowd of 685 his party would put an immediate end to Canadian unemployment.

"We pledge ourselves that if we are elected on the 19th of June we will banish unemployment from the face of this country," said the cocky, bantam-weight ex-premier of Saskatchewan.

MICKEY MCKINNON

Mr. Douglas arrived to address a restrained but attentive audience more than an hour late, because his chartered plane first had to fly a mercy mission to Pemberton, B.C. He said his party's all-encompassing unemployment solution of a job for everybody will not only balance Canada's lagging standard of living but will also:

- Give an NDP government the increased revenue to finance $75-a-month old age pensions for all at 65.

- Provide funds for a government contributory retirement plan.

- Underwrite a national health scheme.
- Spark a long-range program to buy out foreign in industries.

Canada men in a planned economy, he said, citing Sweden as an example of what it could do in combination with a socialist democracy.

LONG LABOR PACE

For two years, he added, Sweden has pushed Canada into third place in the ranks of world living standards and has been devoid of unemployment. It hasn't suffered a strike or major labor dispute for 21 years, he warned. West Ger-

Unemployment would cost a billion dollars a year, into federal coffers, he predicted—enough to finance the NDP's social security program without an increase in taxes. The $75-a-month pension at 65 years of age would be attained without means test and would be geared to the cost of living index and adjusted as the index rises "... and not just before an election."

Under an NDP government, contributory retirement plan, people would retire at 65 with

Laos Prince Fears A Second Korea

PARIS (UPI) — Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma said yesterday the failure to form a coalition government in Laos could lead to a possible "second Korea." He said he hoped a coalition government would be formed soon.

"I think a peaceful solution is still possible," Souvanna said. "I hope and pray that a general battle does not break out. It would be a second Korea."

Fifty Shot Dead In New Terror

ALGIERS (AP) — Terrorist killing hit an unofficial new high for individual attacks here Tuesday with more than 50 persons dead and at least 22 wounded before 6 p.m. curfew sent people off the streets.

Most of the dead were Muslims, and most of the attacks were blamed on the European Secret Army Organization. Among the dead were four Muslim women and four Europeans. The deaths by individual attacks surpassed the 48 killed May 2, the day a bomb explosion killed another 67 Muslims in a record 110 dead in the Algiers area.

The new wave of terror, a reaction to Monday's Muslim attacks on Europeans, frightened most Europeans and Muslims off the streets.

Condemned by earlier Secret Army attacks on Muslims, Muslim nationalists shot 17 Europeans and wounded 78 Monday. One aim of the Secret Army in its campaign to block Algerian independence is to provoke the Muslim population into reprisals. The Secret Army was out in force after daybreak Tuesday, launching about 50 attacks in Algiers alone. Many Muslims were shot in the back as they walked to work.

Policeman Shot Girl, 16 In 'Excusable Homicide'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A coroner's jury yesterday ruled "excusable homicide" the fatal shooting of a 16-year-old girl by a motorcycle patrolman. The parents of the girl, Mona Sue Houston, have sued the city for $500,000, charging patrolman O. M. Koon with reckless homicide in the May 4 death.

Koon said he was chasing the girl's brother for a traffic violation when his gun accidentally discharged, killing her. She was riding with her brother on a motorcycle when the incident occurred.

No Railroad Strike McPhillips Pledges

Conservative candidate A. DeR. McPhillips promised last night there would be no railroad strike this June. It was his maiden speech of the current campaign, at St. James Douglas School.

"There won't be a strike. Our prime minister won't allow it to take place," Mr. McPhillips said. The government would "intervene as they did last time (in 1950), when Prime Minister Diefenbaker 'froze' negotiations between non-operating employees and the railway and directed agreement on a wage settlement."

"I have no doubt they (the CRR) will get close to what way operators

MONTREAL (UP) — The CNE and representatives of its 10,000 trainmen agreed late Tuesday to meet today to discuss talks aimed at averting a strike scheduled to start in only 30 days.

They are asking for an increase in wages during a session of the three-power nuclear test-ban conference.

He explained the prime minister would intervene to see a fair settlement was reached, as he did in the case of "The Don-ops and the (rail) CRR."

Soviet Delegate Called Deaf, Dreary

GENEVA (Reuters) — British "seriously" on a nuclear test ban delegate Joseph Gauthier said.

Thursday said his Soviet counterpart Semyon Tsarapkin "in an attempt to make a positive breakthrough in the 'stand-still' of this futile debate."

Gauthier said he made the suggestion to Tsarapkin in an attempt to make a positive breakthrough in the "stand-still" of this futile debate.

"I am discouraged in the extreme," Gauthier declared. From the Soviet delegate, "we get a continuous, dreary monologue. We have not heard a single sentence to carry us forward one-tenth of an inch."

He remarked the United States and Britain have accepted a neutralist plan as a basis for negotiations on a test-ban treaty and have told this to Tsarapkin "again and again."

Fibroid Tumor Common Complaint Not Likely to Become Cancerous

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a fibroid tumor? How is it different from any other tumor? I have one in the uterus, but my doctor advises against its removal.—Mrs. H. L.

I presume your doctor said not to remove it now, but to wait and see whether surgery becomes necessary. This is part for the course, and no reason for you to be either surprised or puzzled.

A tumor occurring in any part of the body is composed of the same type of tissue as is normally present there. The wall of the womb (or uterus) is made up of fibrous and muscular tissue. Hence a tumor in fibrous tissue is a "fibroid tumor," a very common occurrence.

However, should a cyst (or tumor) develop in the ovaries, which are of a quite different type of tissue, then it will be an "ovarian tumor."

Fibroids can be little, the size of a pea or smaller. They can also be big, growing to even 30 or 40 pounds. There may be only one, or many. There have been cases of a hundred or so.

MORE LIKELY

On the inner wall of the uterus, fibroids are more likely to cause bleeding than when on the outer wall. On either inside or outside, fibroids may (or may not) cause symptoms or problems. Possible difficulty in doing so, miscarriages, or lesser consequences. It is indeed quite common for fibroids to be detected in the course of routine pelvic examinations even though no symptoms are present.

Fibroids aren't removed automatically, just because they are present.—The question is whether or not they are doing any harm.

Menstrual hemorrhage or intermittent "spotting" may dictate removal—which in general may mean hysterectomy.

Rapid growth of a fibroid is another sign indicating that it should be removed. Fibroids are not cancerous in themselves, and they are not likely to become cancerous. A few can, however, and that is one good reason for removing one that is growing rapidly.

MAY STOP GROWING

Where no such troubles result, the fibroid can be allowed to exist in peace, and simply watched in case it ever shows signs of acting up. In numerous cases after menopause a fibroid may stop growing or even become smaller, and nothing need ever be done about it.

Green Belt

green belt along the Island Highway came from Maj. Cuthbert Holmes about two years ago.

He approached Mr. Brown who "sold" the idea to the CIDC which in turn convinced the government of the merit behind the plan.

ON THE JOB

Two city real estate firms—Pemberton, Holmes and Rithet's—have been on the job since the start of the year, getting options and buying property.

"In some ways we had better success than we had hoped and in some ways there were disappointments," Mr. Brown said yesterday.

STRIP DEVELOPMENT

"There are another couple of hundred acres we'd like to have obtained," he said.

The CIDC aim, he said, was to have a complete green belt between Goldstream and Thetis Parks but there already has been some strip development in the area.

"We expect to get the remaining undeveloped property in time," said Mr. Brown.

NOT PREPARED

The CIDC, even if it had the power, was not prepared to expropriate land, he added.

"The prices we had to pay were not unreasonable—although they were somewhat higher than our appraisals." The government had originally set aside $140,000 for the project but only half was used—and only half the land sought was obtained.

Officials said they had de-

U.S. Marines

The marine units waited just off Thailand's shore, aboard ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet. They are expected to begin landing by helicopter at Thailand's naval base of Sataherp at dawn Thursday.

MEETING CALLED

Thailand's foreign minister, Thanat Khoman, announced an emergency meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) has been called to consider the Red advances in Laos. He said the meeting would be held at SEATO headquarters here but that the date has not been set.

Washington announcements said a defence force of about 5,000 men will be built up, including tactical air forces, and 1,000 army men already here for SEATO manoeuvres.

BROADCAST MADE

The Thai premier announced the coming of the Americans in a nationwide broadcast after a flight to the southern city of Chachengsao near the naval base.

He said the action was taken under a March 6 pledge by Rusk to protect the national integrity of Thailand. Rusk made the pledge under a 1954 treaty with Thailand.

American officials in South Viet Nam said they know of no plans for a co-ordinated American military effort involving Laos, South Viet Nam and Thailand.

RELATED SITUATION

The military situation in all three countries is related, however, because Communist guerrilla forces long have been filtering from Laos into South Viet Nam and Thailand now feels itself in the same danger.

An offensive by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, reported by Western intelligence sources to have been supported by Communist North Vietnamese battalions captured Nam Tha, a provincial capital in northwest Laos, 12 days ago.

5,000 FLEE

The offensive rolled over all northwest Laos, and up close to the Thai border. Military sources say 3,000 of the 5,000 men of the royal army in northern Laos have fled to Thailand.

Men Not Equal Says Monty In Color Row

LONDON — The House of Lords rejected a bill to outlaw racial and religious discrimination in British hotels and boarding houses.

The vote was 41 to 21. It came after a long and bitter debate during which some speakers charged that Britain was acquiring a reputation of being "anti-black."

One of the most outspoken opponents of the bill was Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, who said the legislation could never be enforced properly.

"People of different colors cannot be converted into a homogeneous whole by acts of Parliament nor by the exhortations of idealists," he said. "The hard fact is that all men are not equal."

DENVER — Dr. Arthur Evans, 62, said he is refusing to pay federal income taxes because the U.S. government is using tax funds to prepare "heinous weapons of mass destruction."

NEW YORK — James Elkalles, 35, a former mental patient, who claimed to have been blinded by an unknown assailant, has admitted to police he splashed a diluted caustic cleanser into his own eyes after a quarrel with his wife. He has lost the sight in one eye and may lose the vision in the other by the end of the week.

Indonesian Youngsters Face Dutch

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Nasution announced Tuesday that Indonesia is pouring youth volunteers into disputed West New Guinea by air and sea "and if that is not enough the armed forces will step in."

In the Dutch administrative capital of The Hague, it was reported that Indonesian paratroopers landed early Tuesday in the southwestern part of the Dutch-ruled territory and the Dutch high command there had sent reinforcements "to destroy them."

The defence minister said Indonesian volunteers are going into Dutch-held West Irian—as Indonesia calls the disputed territory—from north, east, west and through the capital of Holland on the north coast.

"We are receiving heavy arms from socialist countries in order to surpass the Dutch strength which is supported by NATO," he said.

PARIS — President de Gaulle made it clear Tuesday that France will stay aloof from United States-British contacts with the Soviet Union over Berlin and disarmament.

The Big Four occupation states on Berlin should remain inaction, he told 500 reporters at his first press conference since last September.

"We think that in today's international situation — whose elements are tension, threats and cold war — it is vain to seek to settle the German problem in a satisfying way," he said.

U.K. Tests Unlikely Says Mac

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan said Tuesday it is unlikely that Britain will have to carry out more nuclear tests of its own. Sixteen British scientists are in the island as observers.

The Difference

THE CONFLICTING attitudes of the governments of two great Asian nations—and fellow members of the Commonwealth—toward the West were never more clearly underlined than by the statements made by their respective High Commissioners in Victoria last week.

By chance both the Indian High Commissioner to Canada and the Pakistan High Commissioner to Canada arrived in this city to address different organizations. It was revealing to note that although they did not choose to meet face to face here at any time, they both showed a willingness to carry on their governments' continuing battle over the Kashmir situation through the news columns of the daily newspapers.

Even more revealing was the fact that the Indian High Commissioner, Mr. B. M. Chakravarty, went to some pains to inform his Canadian listeners here that despite the vast financial and material assistance given the countries of South East Asia by the Western nations the West is still regarded with a great deal of suspicion by the Asian peoples.

What Mr. Chakravarty said in essence was: "We view things western with suspicion but don't stop sending them to us."

Happily the Pakistan High Commissioner, Sultan Mohammad Khan, had distinctly different ideas. He said that not only did his countrymen appreciate the help given them by the West but were ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with the West on any international situation that may develop in future.

He pointed out that his government had already declared itself in favor of such a policy by becoming a partner in the South East Asia Treaty Organization, the Western sponsored Asian counterpart of NATO.

In this world of stress and strain the day is rapidly approaching when nations must be willing to stand and be counted. Already the word "neutral" is taking on today the same connotation as the phrase "fellow-traveller" did yesterday.

Pakistan has had the courage to make its choice, but India chooses to sit on the fence with open hands and closed eyes.

No National Issue

THE most significant development in the current election campaign is that nothing significant has developed.

Some political observers feel that due to the non-appearance of a real national issue the electorate is in momentary danger of being drowned in the wave of apathy they see engulfing the country.

To a large degree this is true. Unquestionably the election campaign has so far failed to either capture the imagination or rouse the enthusiasm of the average Canadian voter.

If any fault is to be found with this situation then the blame for it must surely rest upon those political parties in opposition to the present government for it is their purpose to attempt to persuade the public that their national policies are not only different from those of the party in office, but also better.

If they fail to impress this upon the voter they cannot hope to be elected. However, their job becomes more difficult if the program they place before the country differs little from their rival's or possibly may not even be as good or as farseeing. If this is the case then there is little inducement for the voter to switch his vote.

Mr. Swallow Replies

THE PROBLEM of what we should do with our swallows who inconvenience us by building their nests under our eaves in most inconvenient places has apparently caused quite a stir in birddom.

The statement made in a recent editorial that swallows do not like to live in man-made homes is confuted by one of the species who complains that they normally shun these residences because they and their young families are too often ousted by the gregarious, cheeky and greedy house-sparrows.

Our swallow friend says he will welcome home building assistance if he can get a place to his specification.

"What we want," declares the swallow, "is a home that has a doorway exactly 1 1/2 inches wide and 1 3/4 inches high."

In this way the swallow and his wife can get in to feed the children, but the hole is too small for the sparrows and other birds who would have the physical ability to unceremoniously evict them from their homes.

A human expert verifies these measurement figures, pointing out that since he reduced the nest entry size to the proportions indicated, he has had swallow tenants every year—and nary a sparrow.

We pass on this information to those swallow lovers who want to have their feathered friends around, but in places where their less-than-satisfactory sanitary habits can be regarded with toleration.

Space Testing

THE NDP candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich is reported as saying that Canada would run itself if it tried to keep up with the space rocket junkies. So it would but there need be no fears.

Space adventuring is for the big battalions.

It would be better left alone even by them, also, certainly, on the major scale now current. It is interesting to note the two informed voices recently raised against the programs of both America and the Soviet Union.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the famous Jodrell Bank radio telescope in England which tracks the satellites in their flight and an astronomer-scientist of note, says that nuclear tests in space could block great discoveries yet in prospect and endanger any possible life in Venus. He describes the U.S. and U.S.S.R. plans to land rockets on Venus as a scientific and moral disaster.

On this side of the Atlantic Dr. James Van Allen, the American physicist who discovered the atmospheric belt of radiation named after him, told the House of Representatives that manned space vehicles were unnecessary and that space knowledge could be obtained without the risk and cost of astronaut journeying.

If the objectives were purely scientific and thus altruistic space exploration would invite more enthusiasm than dismay. It is the well-founded fear that both orbital flights and atmospheric nuclear tests are inherently military in concept that worries humanity and gives rise to the hope that these experiments can be kept in bounds.

And that of course comes back to the disarmament tables round which delegates sit but so far without much accord.

"Evidently the officer didn't think that whack round the legs with Marty's chain came under the heading of fun"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

BY TOM TAYLOR

IN ITS long history the blood royal takes in a great many schilling characters. We are perhaps prone to assume that in the modern context its role is purely nominal and therefore more ornamental than otherwise.

By comparison with the past this is true enough. Kings and queens and princes of old did not merely reign but ruled, and their personal attributes alone in many instances kept them in ermine. They were perforce leaders of their nations.

Patently this kept them in form and allowed free play to their initiative and genius, if any. In more recent times, it must be conceded, the blood royal has been kept bottled up; it hasn't been permitted to intervene in ways that would exhibit original thought or action.

This, you see, would be interfering in politics, or something.

Yet paradoxically the demand has been that the monarchy should step off its pedestal although if it comes off too much it will cease to have the mystique of royalty—and conform more to the texture of ordinary society.

Rather a difficult proposition, really.

There is a kind of break-through taking place, however, and due to the kind of individuality that, as aforesaid, found ample room to put its talents to the test.

Prince Philip, I see, has become an author. Now back there were various members of the blood royal who wrote books, James I was one of them. And the ex-king Edward has put himself in print, albeit somewhat innocently. And too, while without royal genes himself the young man they call Tony has been absorbed and he adorns books by illustration even if he does not write them.

Thinking over the royal scene of my own lifetime this is a significant change in the order of things.

Philip's book, also, has photographs, taken by himself, and this puts him in rivalry with the experience of his new-found relative. That should add piquancy to the royal diversions which take place in private.

And doubtless there are illuminating, or would be if we could listen in.

Prince Philip, for instance, now in Canada, has been asked wouldn't he like to answer the criticisms directed by the British press at palace circles. I should think he'd love to, but he parried this neatly by saying in effect that the blood royal was fair game so long as gossip and innuendo was eschewed.

On this side of the Atlantic the Duke of Edinburgh is equally the most capable and pungent voice of the British monarchy. He has had for a couple of centuries, at least. And his leadership of the current Commonwealth Study Conference is proof of his acceptance as a figure with ideas and the vitality of expression.

He is not there in a titular, royal capacity but because he has the stuff of which leaders are made.

He is a throwback to the days when kings and princes were out in front showing the way.

Will There Be a Change?

There's a hardy old French saying that, freely translated into English, goes like this:

"The more things appear to change, the more they remain just as they always were."

Like political morals and ethical standards in public business for instance.

In Quebec Province recently there have been some pretty shocking exposures of financial skulduggery by members of the late Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government and its friends, and parallel to this has come the emergence of what is commonly called the "new morality" in civic and provincial governments.

The barring of public corruption is scarcely new to Quebec politics or, to be fair, politics in any other province.

The Quebec phenomenon, as viewed from outside the provincial borders, has always been coupled with the realization that public dishonesty has been regarded with considerably more tolerance than in the English-speaking areas of the Dominion.

There has probably not been a great deal more public corruption in Quebec than elsewhere; but Quebecers like to think they are more honest about dishonesty than their English-speaking countrymen.

But now the "new morality" has raised its fine, clean, good and somewhat astonished face on the Quebec political scene and it becomes important to assess its presence in terms of federal and provincial politics.

Most closely identified with this reformation are Premier Lesage and Mayor Drappau of Montreal. Both inherited office to time by predecessors for the enrichment of friends and the system of political power through financial favor. And nobody doubts the integrity, sincerity and high moral standards of either man. They stand, indeed, as the figureheads of the new cult of morality.

It might seem that this new and revolutionary cult might change the whole character of Quebec politics, that public business no longer would be conducted on a basis of political favoritism but on strict business principles.

Certainly the honesty cult has made a host of converts. In the cities one gets the impression that it is sweeping the country.

One of my colleagues has discovered an interesting way of dealing with those relatives and friends, mostly women, but not always, who look upon the telephone as a social instrument and indulge in half-hour or three-quarter-hour long gab fests each day with their buddies.

After trying for nearly an hour to break in on the busy line of his sister-in-law in order to convey some small but urgent domestic message, he at last made it. Mad as a wet hen, he recollected that his sister-in-law is a devotee of Harry Belafonte, who was appearing in town at the moment.

"John, Ella," he said, "I'm so sorry! I succeeded in getting two tickets for Belafonte, and since I find I can't use them tonight, I've been call-

Quebec's 'New Morality'

By CHARLES NICHOIS from Montreal

The high and lower clergy are all in favor of it. The better educated section of the community, the intellectuals, are in favor of it. The urban businessman is in favor of it because, after all, it's easier to do business generally without the complicating bookkeeping of payoffs and kickbacks.

But the average Quebecois seems to like the abacus better than the IBM equipment. There are all sorts of devices that might not be found in what every young executive should know that the Quebecois prides himself in mastering.

This attitude washes over into political life. As government at all levels now has become big business, the Quebecois likes to deal with it as he would with any other business contact. And, as the men he is dealing with in government are Quebecois too, they tend to do business the way he does.

So, although the morality cult has definitely caught fire in certain urban circles, it is not likely to affect deep behavior habits of the general populace. Contracts still change hands with government and public officials with the shifting fortunes of the main political parties.

A man who knows Quebec temperament as well as any man and better than most, and who has achieved important public office, put it to me this way:

"The trend is toward honesty, but a great many people admit, when they hear of corruption, that they themselves might have done the same thing in the same position."

"There's this attitude: a man in public office is a fool not to take advantage of it as long as he shares with the people and doesn't take all the profits.

"They're not too shocked by profiteering in politics—they think it's a clever fellow who does it. But it's not clever to be caught. And that happens when they draw the margin too broadly and take too much."

This wasn't the personal philosophy of the man who was talking, one of the principals of the movement toward the new morality. It was simply his appraisal of the Quebec cult as applied to public conduct.

And this man's appraisal was that the recent uncovering of public misbehavior in financial matters won't mean very much politically. These things happen; people get caught. People talk about it and forget. It doesn't change the main course of politics currents in Quebec.

So it looks as though the pork barrel is just as enduring in Quebec life as a pot of split pea soup: just as substantial, just as satisfying.

"The more things seem to change . . . as the saying goes."

Resented But Effective

During a long session of the French cabinet, President Charles de Gaulle turned to his prime minister and asked:

"What time is it?" Premier Michel Debreit rose, bowed and said:

"Whatever time M. le President desires it to be."

Today France has a new premier, but it is doubtful that Debreit lost his job because he refused to co-operate with de Gaulle.

Parisians say the story was circulated by members of the National Assembly who are better over de Gaulle's dictatorial manner. The assemblymen, once powerful arbiters of France's fortunes, have been reduced to the role of faceless extras.

Their grumbling has mounted sharply since de Gaulle recently replaced Debreit, with out bothering to call an election. The president simply named an old friend, Georges Pompidou, as the new premier and informed the Assembly that it was expected to approve the choice. De Gaulle pointedly ignored several political leaders in his selection.

Though the president's strong-arm tactics have stirred resentment, no one can deny that he brought stability to France when it was badly needed.

In trying to sort out its postwar domestic and overseas troubles and reassert itself as a leading nation, France got itself tied up in a political knot. Seven parties were pulling different ways. Government authority alternated with near-anarchy as splinter groups combined to grab power for a while only to break up again. Between 1949 and 1958 Governments were made and unmade on an average of once every six months. The constant turnover of cabinets—28 in 10 years—deprived the country of any coherent national policy or leadership.

Debreit set a record for a French Republic, lasting three years and three months. De Gaulle brought the mad run-around, brought back by popular acclaim, the French resistance hero, returned to power and set to restore order. The new Constitution of the Fifth Republic, effective September, 1958, put the fate of the nation into his hands.

"Maybe," he tells me, "if I can work this every week for six months or so, it might cure her."

I doubt it.

Computers

Plain Icky

By CASSANDRA from London

ALL in all I'm agin machines.

This does not mean that I wish that the wooden plow should replace the motorized tractor, or that the wheel was a bad invention.

But things like the telephone, the buzz-saw or the "ton-up" motor-bike lend little to my quotient of happiness. As with the roaring road drill, so with the computer.

Machines that "boil out the answer," that in mathematical terms can recite "Mary had a little lamb" and the "Lord's Prayer" and can televise the expression on the backside of the moon, have no place in Luddite Cassandra's petty shrinking world.

So how glad was I to read about the Christchurch Council's decision to ask the makers of a computer accounting machine to reimburse them for overtime paid to the staff in the Borough Treasurer's department.

What happened was that the perceptive mechanical brute they had acquired had taken to having a quiet "drop off," just like human beings in the Counting House, and, instead of cutting down the staff's time, had made innumerable mistakes which required humble clerks made of flesh and blood to work overtime to get things restored to Deloitte, Plender and Griffiths standards.

There is a dark art called "cybernetics."

It means the study of communication and control of mechanisms in machines.

What is so exciting about cybernetics and electronic computers which imitate the human brain, is that they are now developing human frailties.

Feed an automatic computer a lot of meaningless material and it has the class equivalent of a nervous breakdown.

It litters. It evades. And if given too much information to digest in its disgusting stomach of transistors, resistances, inductances and low pressure impedances (see how I take to the language?), it upchucks.

Throws up.

Sick and is plain icky. Computers usually arrive in an office with a set of greasy-haired salesmen wearing shirts with thick vertical and horizontal dark blue stripes, and a little metallic blonde.

Well, we've got 'em now, with their control panels and their console and their twinkling lights.

We can look this sleek, smooth, silent heap of machinery in the face and say, "You know sumpin' You've got a high-impedance guts-ache."

I HAVE commented before

how I can read a page of a book with my eyes scrutinizing every word and, at the end of it, my brain pot taking in a single sentence.

This is what I call my vegetable attitude, and is most restful. The mind is simply not in gear. Mood cauliflower.

I now find I can do the same thing when tuned in to the BBC weather reports.

I listen to them carefully and at the end, just as they are breaking into the news, I realize that I haven't absorbed a single syllable.

Why DO the weather boys still stick to their jargon?

Why DO they still talk about anti-cyclones, troughs of pressure, occluded fronts and variable cloud?

Why don't they tell us in simple language if it is going to be hot or cold or wet or fine?

THE Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Words, of which I am the President, announces a summary execution of an offender shot down in the House of Commons by one of my Vigilantes, Mr. John Peyton, M.P.

Mr. Peyton asked the Minister of Housing the meaning of the word "premiered" as used in a circular from the Ministry and asked for an assurance that this grave offence would not occur again.

Mr. Geoffrey Rippon, Parliamentary Secretary, replied that "premiered" schemes are schemes for which prizes have been awarded.

Vigilante Peyton thereupon drew his gun and fired a warning shot demanding that the Ministry should stop these circulars and not use words exhumed from a 1547 dictionary.

Mr. Rippon defended himself by saying that the word "premiered" has been in use in an article in The Athenaeum, as recently as 1892, but seeing his opponent coming in for the kill surrendered and handed over the word "premiered."

It was bungled off without further delay. There will be no funeral service.

John D Accuses Pearson Of 'Gunboat Philosophy'

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Tuesday accused a "gunboat philosophy" in regard to a 12-mile territorial limit for Canada.

"He said Mr. Pearson wants to declare a 12-mile limit unilaterally."

"That kind of unilateral philosophy won't get us," he said before a crowd of about 300 in the St. Stephen High School. A policy such as advocated by Mr. Pearson, he said, would require armed forces and naval units along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts to enforce it. This would be "a dangerous system."

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government is in touch with various nations trying to get agreement on extension of territorial limits to 12 miles. The present Canadian limit is three miles. This was a fair and far better means of achieving a 12-mile limit than by declaring one unilaterally.

"This is too dangerous a prayer and asked God's intercession to preserve Mr. Diefenbaker's energy for the current campaign."

A novel religious ruse was struck at the meeting where Mr. Diefenbaker gave his first talk in a three-day Maritime tour. Rev. George McMichen of St. Stephen Presbyterian Church opened the meeting with St. Hubert. Que. and shook

'Queen' Stops John D

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker walked into the Admiral Beatty Hotel here Tuesday night while at least 40 students carrying placards calling for a better deal for the Maritimes sang "God Save the Queen."

Singing of the anthem was an obvious method to force the prime minister and his party to stop. While standing at attention he could not help but see some of the placards.

At least seven colleges or universities were represented among the demonstrators who were opposed a while later by other demonstrators carrying placards supporting the prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker came here to launch the Progressive Conservative campaign in New Brunswick with a major election speech for the federal election June 18.

Demonstration leaders were Tony Gadd of the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton and John Everett of Mount Allison University in Sackville.

Mr. Diefenbaker was seemingly puzzled by the singing and the placards that were thrust before him. He did not turn his head and paid little heed to the signs or singers and walked slowly into the building.

The students handed out printed copies of their reasons for the demonstration that outlined their "cause."

Close to 3,000,000 young Canadians will be emerging onto the job market in the next three years, said Mr. Douglas, but there are no jobs now for 600,000 people.

He blamed Canada's unemployment largely upon the Conservatives, but saved his most biting criticism for the Liberals.

The Liberals' social security program in the current campaign, Mr. Douglas charged, is about half of the program the same party put at the top of its platform at its 1919 convention.

'WE GOT BOTH'
The Liberals, he said, years ago devised the campaign slogan "King, (Prime Minister Mackenzie King) or Chase—and we got both."

Former Prime Minister St. Laurent said "The CCF are only Liberals in a hurry"—as far as I am concerned any Liberal who is moving at all looks like a Liberal in a hurry."

WON'T BE LONG
Turning to the nuclear arms issue, Mr. Douglas said he believed that if either Liberals or Conservatives get a clear majority, June 18 it will not be long before Canada has nuclear arms.

Reading of the "gambling scandal" in Ontario one wonders how long before Canada and the U.S.A. reach maturity and recognize, as England has done, that anti-gambling laws do not prevent gambling but, as prohibition did, create criminals.

It is impossible to prevent people (who gamble with their lives every day) from betting on something. A person can legally ruin himself betting at a race track, on the stock exchange or produce market, but bet a dollar on a race (off the track) or on a card and you are a criminal. How ridiculous, how inconsistent!

Restore Bus Runs

A possible solution to the problem of getting more passengers to ride the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority buses in the Greater Victoria area could be the restoration of the bus routes discontinued August 28, 1961 at a reduced number of bus trips than formerly in these areas, to be profitable. Less mileage than formerly and more passengers at present should increase revenue since operating costs would be less.

As an example, instead of buses making three trips an hour around the Don-

'It's Mismanagement'

Martin

(Continued from Page 1) fought against Russian tyranny and said the new Liberal leader would have been secretary-general of the United Nations but for a Russian bloc veto.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker knew this, he said.

"Such statements give Canadians grave doubts as to the qualifications of the honorable gentleman at this critical time," he said.

TORIES PLAYED
During his hour-long speech, the prominent Liberal faced the Progressive Conservatives for "confused and bumbling" actions during the past five years and said that Canada, instead of getting sound and responsible policies, had merely got flowery speeches.

He blamed Prime Minister Diefenbaker for the troubles which he said beset Canada today—loss of export markets, maladministration of monetary policy, unemployment, and a slowed up economy.

FLEMING HIT
Mr. Martin was bitterly critical of Finance Minister Fleming for bringing in deficit financing and for pegging the Canadian dollar. A move which he said put Canada in the same class as some Latin American countries.

The 32-cent dollar, he added, would prove a heavy burden for those people on fixed incomes and would also increase the cost of living for Canadians on bread, meat and clothing.

'WILL DROP'
The Liberals, he said, were not unilaterally opposed to a discounted dollar but the present pegging was at a level which "bears a burden on the ordinary people of Canada."

And the government will not be able to keep the Canadian dollar at the present level and it will drop still further in value, he suggested.

Mr. Martin hit out at Canada's weakened ability to gain the confidence of her closest allies.

"Coolness has replaced the usual warmth of our relationship with Britain and America," he said.

'Renegotiate Columbia Treaty'

VANCOUVER (CP)—New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday night no matter what government is elected in Canada it ought to renegotiate the Columbia River Treaty.

Arriving at Vancouver's international airport to greet him, the Scottish-born party chief said the treaty had been changed to please premier Bennett's Social Credit government.

'PLANNED BASIS'
"I for one don't like it," he said. "It should be renegotiated on a planned basis."

Asked about statements by other leaders that the "esteem" of the NDP campaign is falling off, Mr. Douglas said "this is complete nonsense. Our campaign is growing every day."

Tory Claim

DALHOUSIE, N.B. (CP)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson Tuesday night termed "not true" the government's claim its repeated budget deficits resulted from increased payments to the provinces.

"They happened unintentionally because the government mismanaged our finances," he told an election audience here.

With New Brunswick Premier Robichaud backing him on the platform, Mr. Pearson said the provinces' share of tax revenues under federal provincial tax deals has risen more slowly under the Progressive Conservative government than it did under the previous Liberal government.

"The present government has entirely failed to deal fairly among the provinces," he said.

He promised that a new Liberal government would provide equalization payments to ensure that all provinces would receive equal amounts of revenue, per head of population, from the tax fields shared with the federal government.

"That is the only way the provinces can afford similar standards of services for their people."

Mr. Pearson said the government's claim that budget deficits had resulted from increased payments to the provinces "doesn't agree with what the government itself has said in the past."

Finance Minister Fleming had "kept on saying that he was going to balance the budget."

IWA Stewards Snub NDP Trio

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A group of shop stewards walked out of a union meeting here rather than hear political speeches by three New Democratic Party federal election candidates.

"Politics has a place, but it isn't a meeting called to discuss negotiations," said Michael Butler, shop steward at nearby Fraser Mills for the IWA.

Mr. Butler said Tuesday he and about 25 others left an IWA meeting of about 70 shop stewards after saying they didn't want to hear speeches from candidates Barry Mather for New Westminster, Erhart Regier for Burnaby-Coquitlam and Robert Prittie for Burnaby-Richmond.

No-Hitter in Seven-Inning Game

Strongman Strikes Out Everybody

Gordon Strongman hasn't taken up where he left off last season. He's made a couple of jumps between seasons.

The sturdy right-hander, who started last season for the Carnation League all-stars who went all the way to the regional Pony League playoffs, is cutting an even bigger swath this season in the Cosmopolitan Babe Ruth League.

Last night, Strongman pitched a no-hit, no-run game and struck out the side in each of the seven innings as Dominion Hotel defeated Sidney, 3-0, at Beacon Hill Park.

It was the second start of the season, and the second win, for the 15-year-old right-hander. Last Friday, he struck out 20 and batted in the winning run in a 3-2 extra-inning win. In 15 innings, Strongman has accounted for all but four of the counts with strikeouts and given up only three walks.

He walked the first two batters last night, struck out the next 14, hit the 17th would-be batter to come to the plate, then whiffed the last seven.

He almost needed to be as good as he was last night. Doug Hannan, a 13-year-old southpaw, faced older hitters with considerable aplomb. He gave up only one hit, to Derek Rolfe in the fourth inning, and all three runs scored by the winners were unearned.

Brent Baker featured Pony League action with a one-hit, 17-1, victory for Jokers over Oak Bay Police.

In Little League play, catcher Glen Myles hit a grand-slam home run for Vickers in an 11-9 win over Merchants in the Cadboro Bay League.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Gorge Vale thinks that the luck of the draw may cost them dearly in their effort to win the Inter-Club League for the third year in succession.

The holders of the Willie Park Driver trophy have been balloted to meet Victoria on their own course on May 23, and that is the only match in which Ron MacLeod, the Vancouver Island Open Match play champion will be available to the Victoria club.

Gorge in the past two years has taken 17½ out of a possible 18 points from their home games with Victoria in this competition, and that has been the main reason why they have won the trophy.

This year, with MacLeod playing, they feel that the Island champion should be good for at least the singles point, and maybe one of the foursome points as well.

MacLeod will be leaving immediately after to take up his professional job at Jasper.

The Gorge Vale boys however have no complaint because the order of matches was made by blind draw and the task of meeting Victoria with MacLeod was something that might have happened to either of the other teams in the league.

The composition of the sides for this year's tournament has not been officially decided anywhere to my knowledge, but there will be at least one new regular in John Hadfield, the former Uplands junior, who has graduated to the big team along with Gordon Pollock, Frank Scroggie, Fred Ranson and Ken Lawson. Sixth man has yet to be chosen.

Gorge Vale will be without Norm Boden, who is now professional at Mt. Brenton, but Fred Painter, although no longer greenkeeper there, is still eligible, as he is a member of the club.

Other regulars including Art Donaldson, Bill Wakeham, Pudge Fantorpe and John Merriman will no doubt be included again, but there is keen competition for the last two places from among the very good half dozen Gorge Vale golfers with handicaps of four and lower.

Colwood also has its problems for professional Bill Court is still suffering from his back trouble and will not be available. It looks like Laurie Kerr, George Andrews, Vic Painter and Bill Garner for four spots on the side, with Don Ross, Roger Ross, Harold Jacobson, Joe Evans and local junior champion Gary Smith fighting for fifth and sixth places.

With their well balanced teams, Gorge and Uplands in that order, look at the moment as the ones who could collect the most points, while for Colwood and Victoria the prospects could be extremely bright if they are able to find possible point collectors right down to the last man.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced yesterday that the junior age limit for participation in the Canadian Junior Championship this year will be based on those who have not attained their 19th birthdays before midnight Aug. 31, the day the tournament closes.

Earlier this year the RCGA set Sept. 15 as the time limit for the 19th birthday.

The West Coast Open tournament at Port Alberni will be played this year on June 23 with Bill Wakeham defending the title he won last year.

The competition starts on Saturday, June 23 with an 18 holes handicap event, while main competition for the Russell Turner Memorial Trophy is on Sunday, over 27 holes.

Entries close June 16 and should be sent to L. F. Davidson, Box 460, Port Alberni. Limit is 80 players.

Entry forms for the Victoria City Championship to be played June 3 and 10 at Royal Colwood are now obtainable from the secretaries of local clubs. The 50 players with the lowest handicaps will compose the field.

Boston Bombs Yankees With Nine-Run Inning

Claims that the rest of the league is catching up to the New York Yankees looked quite a bit less than wishful thinking last night as the defending champions took a humiliating clobbering while the American League race got a further tightening up.

Bowled over twice at Cleveland on Sunday, the Yankees were stunned by a nine-run sixth inning at Boston, where the Red Sox went on for a 14-4 win.

When all prospects were in Cleveland Indians, who also just were still in first place but only three and a half games ahead of the eighth place Red Sox.

SETTLING DOWN

Ralph Terry gave up an infield single and a home run, by Carl Yastrzemski, in the first inning, then settled down to pitch hitless baseball until the sixth while the Yankees grabbed a 3-2 lead.

Then the roof caved in. The Red Sox sent 14 men to the plate in the sixth. Seven singles, a double, sacrifice fly, three bases on balls and a throwing error by Yogi Berra got nine men across the plate.

Yastrzemski singled twice in the big inning.

But it was an ex-Yankee who presented the Indians from extending their lead. Norm Siebern hit a pair of two-run homers to play the big role in the 6-5 verdict for Kansas City Athletics.

Minnesota Twins, Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles all took the chance to creep closer to the lead.

The Twins, a surprisingly solid looking contender, took Detroit Tigers 4-2, with Jack Kralick pitching well until he had to leave in the eighth inning because of a blister on his pitching hand. A two-run homer by Vic Power proved the difference as the Twins tied the Yankees for second place.

A half game behind, the White Sox came up with two runs in the eighth inning, built around a pinch double by Al Smith, to squeeze by Washington Senators, 4-3.

Four-hit pitching by Bill Pappas and two two-run homers by rookie Jack "Boog" Powell featured Orioles' 7-1 conquest of Los Angeles Angels.

San Francisco Giants continued their mad pace in the National League, winning their 15th in their last 18 games by beating St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3.

Two unbeaten southpaws, Ernie, Curt Simmons and Bill walk.

Pierce, started. The Giants drove Simmons to cover with the first three innings good for six runs. Simmons had won five straight. Pierce lasted until the eighth inning, when Stu Miller came in to get him out of trouble.

Los Angeles Dodgers stayed in second place, four games back, by scoring six runs in the seventh inning to defeat Houston Colts, 10-7.

New York Mets kept battling until they beat Chicago Cubs, 6-3, with a 13-inning run.

Behind 4-1, after six innings, the Mets finally tied by scoring with two out in the ninth. They tied again at 5-5 with two out in the 10th, then won on a two-out, bases loaded sacrifice.

Unnamed Writer Joins in Bidding

Four bids were received by the Pacific National Exhibition Tuesday for the Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks.

Three of them were jointly backed by National Hockey League clubs and a fourth was submitted by officials as a token bid by an unnamed sports writer.

The three main bids are from: Fred J. Hume, former mayor of Vancouver and former owner of the defunct New Westminster Royals, which has the backing of New York Rangers;

Lumber executive L. L. G. (Poldi) Bentley, supported by Montreal Canadiens; Vending machine broker Harry Ornest, backed by Toronto Maple Leafs.

The PNE has stated that it considers the franchise worth at least $150,000. A committee of three examined the bids Tuesday and will present its recommendation to the PNE board of directors today. The PNE has reserved the right to reject all bids.

NO COMMENT

The PNE did not announce what the bids are. Ornest would make no comment after filing his bid just before deadline except to say he had only made up his mind Tuesday morning to submit one.

He had previously offered $30,000 for the franchise plus $10,000 for the assets.

Punch Imlach, coach and general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, said Tuesday the Maple Leafs are prepared to give the strongest possible working agreement to the Canucks.

"If Ornest wins the Vancouver franchise we will supply the necessary players for a contender," he said. "Our farm system is as strong as anyone's."

He had 17 men in the American Hockey League last season, more than anyone else in the NHL.

Both the Bentley and the Hume bids offer the same concrete player protection from the respective NHL clubs.

Shooting at Fish Has Its Problems

By ALEC MERRIMAN

A man thought it was a good idea to shoot a fish. In order to get closer he put the tip of the barrel under water. The barrel blew open and he narrowly avoided death or serious injury.

This is a true story and the actual gun is displayed in a gun safety exhibit by the provincial recreation department in the Jaycees-Colonist Outdoors Show in the Curling Rink.

The safety exhibit graphically illustrates the dangers of faulty guns and is one that every hunter, or prospective hunter should note.

Weapons held together with string, tape or wire are always dangerous. Never use firearms in this condition. A notice over a gun bound together with tar tape.

One gun on display is split down the middle — someone forgot about a cleaning rag in the barrel and then fired the gun.

One hunter, engaged in illegal hunting, made a floundering out of a piece of perforated metal. It didn't work. A conservation officer caught him and the homemade silencer is now displayed as a warning.

A youngster, who had been watching TV westerns, cut down his 22 rifle, but a game official caught up with him and took the gun.

One 22 rifle on display was involved in the shooting of a man. It had a faulty mechanism.

The exhibit, which was the project of fish and game branch official Bill Ward, places emphasis on the dangers of old Damascus barreled shotguns and rusted weapons.

Ward is the editor of the fish and game branch Wildlife Review, which now has a circulation of 15,000 copies.

Along with veteran Cariboo game guide and resort operator Art Abrahm, now with the government's travel branch, Ward is on hand throughout the fair to answer questions about recreation in British Columbia.

Crabs, Codfish and Octopus

The federal fisheries department's Outdoors Show exhibit arranged by David Denbigh of the fisheries research board at Nanaimo has fascinating live tanks displaying a live octopus, several varieties of rock fish, ling cod, black (Alaska) cod, sculpin, rock crabs, red crabs, barnacles, starfish, huge sea cucumbers, herring, a rat fish, sea snails, sea anemones, a giant mussel and oysters.

Skin divers, headed by Jaycee Gordon Howard, are out every morning looking for new exhibits for the marine aquarium and Denbigh reports changes are being made in the live fish every day. Today's project is to capture a wolf eel.

But the aquarium is only a part of the fisheries exhibit. There are a score of panel displays, describing the work of the fisheries on the Pacific coast—a relief model of the Robertson Creek spawning channel, near Alberni, a huge map of the Big Qualicum River control project, the story of pollution research, the story of the salmon scales tell and how to read them, identification charts, and outlines in pictures and diagrams of many other fisheries projects.

Two booths in the Outdoors Show of special interest to small boaters are the Hydrographic Survey exhibit, which tells just about all there is to know about preparing and reading charts, and the Safety Afloat exhibit of the department of transport.

All small boaters should make sure to pick up the completely revised 1962 edition of Safety Afloat, which is being distributed at the Outdoors Show for the first time anywhere in Canada.

A new pullout sheet in the booklet gives complete information on lights, steering and sailing rules, whistle signals, buoyage system, safety equipment—in fact all a small boat owner has to know to be safe on water.

75,000 Small Boats in B.C.

John Hamilton, small boats officer with DOT at Ottawa, who is manning the booth, says B.C. now has 75,000 owners of small boats. Model boats, which are moving all the time, show lighting hook ups for boats under 26 feet, over 26 feet and sailboats.

The new distress signal flag, designed to be spread over a deck by anyone in distress, as a signal to aircraft, is on display.

Biggest exhibit in the Outdoors Show is the Jaycees-Colonist booth, jointly manned by experts from fishing chapter of Victoria Fish and Game Club, Saanich Inlet Boatmen's Association, Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and Rhys Davis with Willie Eng, where fishermen can pick up expert advice on anything from deep salmon fishing to catching the lunkers on home-tied flies.

Michael Williams gives a nightly demonstration of performing dogs. Victoria Bowmen run a continuous archery gallery, and the Trinidad Steel Band performs in the Curling Rink every afternoon and twice in the evenings.

ARNOLD PALMER... the best

'Burying' Palmer Big Mistake

By WILL GRIMMEY

NEW YORK (AP) — They shouldn't have made Arnold Palmer mad. Gary Player said Tuesday with a note of resignation.

"It was like putting a match to a keg of dynamite," he said.

"You know, Arnie got off to a bad start on the winter tour early this year," added the little golfing gold prospector from Johannesburg. "They began writing his obituary. They said he was too interested in making money, that he had lost his edge and that he'd never be a big tournament threat again."

"That made Arnie mad. I found out long ago that the

19. Let the metal stand overnight	20. Next morning wash away oil with gasoline	21. Rub together	22. They won't get hot	23. Neither overnight standing nor gasoline removes the MolySLIP	24. Question: It looks good on paper but will it really work in your car?

When a million British motorists rave about a new product, there must be something to it.

THERE IS. But MolySLIP is no 'miracle' product. By a perfectly straightforward scientific principle MolySLIP reduces friction in engines, differentials, and transmissions* to give your vehicle more power, better performance, longer engine life and measurably greater mileage per gallon. Millions of Britons and continental Europeans have proved this to their satisfaction. Now it's your turn.

It is emphasized that MolySLIP is not an additive. It is an oil supplement that virtually 'plates' metal surfaces with molecules of (MoS₂), one of the most slippery substances known.

HOW THE 'PLATING' TAKES PLACE

A molecule of MolySLIP is a 'sandwich' of one atom of a metal called molybdenum between two atoms of sulphur. And since sulphur atoms are strongly attracted to metal, but not to each other, they cling to piston and cylinder walls: . . . yet slide freely over each other.

REAL ECONOMIES RESULT

Since it takes less power to move an engine when friction is reduced, it also takes less gasoline. Supplement your engine oil with MolySLIP—allowing approximately 300 miles for the 'plating' to take proper effect—and you will not only save gas, but you can look forward to longer engine life and lower maintenance costs.

PERFORMANCE IS MUCH IMPROVED TOO

By reducing friction, MolySLIP improves power and acceleration.

And when you add MolySLIP 'G' to your transmission* (manual only), and to your differential and steering-gear-box, the effects of the 'plating' are most noticeable. Noise, particularly back axle hum, disappears for good. Gear changing is smoother. Steering is lighter.

LONGER ENGINE LIFE

Overnight standing and excessive choking do not remove the protection of MolySLIP. The 'plating' remains, even when oil has drained or been washed away. The most dramatic illustration of this was at a rally when a competitor's crank case drain plug fell out. Though this is not recommended, he drove 10 miles to the nearest control point without oil. There was no damage to the engine.

MOLYSLIP

ADD MolySLIP TO THE OIL IN YOUR CAR

MolySLIP is developed by THE SLIP CORP. OF CANADA (INCORPORATED IN GREAT BRITAIN), and is marketed in Canada by SLIPCO CHEMICALS OF CANADA.

The Technical Story

MolySLIP actually 'plates' bearing surfaces with permanent MoS₂ anti-friction molecules. Size of MolySLIP MoS₂ particles average 1/2 to 1 1/2 microns, or .000011", thus allowing 99.9% to pass through oil filters. The particles are perfectly suspended. (Imperfect suspension has been the cause of failure in MoS₂ products in the past). MolySLIP contains anti-rust and anti-corrosion additives for protection during free standing periods. MolySLIP and MolySLIP 'G' have been made to blend with all of the latest automotive lubricants including the multi-viscosity grades.

Developed and proven in England where cars have 30% sales tax and gasoline is 60c a gallon.

Introduced over two years ago, MolySLIP had a slow start. The British motorist doesn't go 'round pouring strange liquids into his car. His car costs a lot and costs a lot to run. He wants it to last a long time. But the word spread. MolySLIP did work. Now millions of motorists in Britain, and continental Europe too, enjoy more economical motoring, better performance and longer engine life, because of MolySLIP.

London's Tracks Housing Projects?

By ALAN HARVEY
LONDON (CP) — The threat of the "exploding metropolis" hangs over London's favorite racetracks.

With land values booming, property speculators look greedily at the green acres of racetracks within easy reach of the city centre. Houses are to replace horses at Hurst Park, and the real estate men have their hungry eyes on Sandown and Kempton.

Once known as "Happy Hampton" because of its proximity to Hampton Court, stampering grounds of King Henry VII, Hurst Park was opened for racing in 1862. One of its most popular races is the Victoria Cup, a seven-furlong handicap.

It is an unusual track. One way to get to it is by taking a short-cut through the graveyard of a church and then lining up for a trip across a narrow strip of water in a creaking punt propelled by an elderly pensioner who collects sixpence for his efforts.

Nobody minds the inglorious journey but the trip back past the deep water and the lonely graveyard offers gloomy temptation to the impoverished backer.

Canadian visitors accustomed to regular oval-shaped tracks are often intrigued by Hurst's odd shape. Distance races are run over a winding, figure-eight course at right angles to the grandstand, forcing spectators to crane their necks for even a distant view of the action.

But Hurst has special appeal for Londoners and fans will be sorry when the last race is run this fall.

As for Sandown and Kempton, a boom in shares of the private companies that run these tracks suggests that they won't remain Kempton, at Sandown, and Sandown, at Esher, are located in flourishing residential areas and apparently won't indefinitely be able to withstand London's expansive thrust.

SLIGHT SLOPE
Sandown, just a couple of stops away from busy suburbs such as Surbiton and Wimbledon, is a handsome track built on a slight slope affording a clear view of racing. It has large car-parks and is within sight of a railway station.

Epsom, a few miles south of London, is safe as the site of the world-famous Derby because of an act of Parliament guaranteeing free access to the downs. The royal protection will keep Ascot in being as one of Britain's paramount courses, and the Windsor track in Berkshire is also likely to remain unmolested.

Want World Title

Patersons Not Timid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Paterson brothers are aiming for the top in badminton—world's championships.

This is the ultimate target for Rolf and Ed Paterson, Vancouver brothers who won the Canadian junior men's doubles championship three years running until age broke up their partnership temporarily.

Rolf, 20, was too old for the junior competition this year so Ed, 18, teamed up with Bruce Rollick of Vancouver to win the national junior doubles title. Rolf found the going a little more difficult this year in senior company at the national championships, but Ed came through for a triple victory.

Ed won the junior singles title and teamed with Diana Godfrey of Victoria to win the national mixed doubles title.

Ed Paterson says he's sorry the brother combination had to be broken up in the junior competition this year. But they'll be back together again in next year's competitions.

They get along well together and they say they'd like to do big things together. "When I was five, I went into private school," says Ed. "Rolf was my big brother. He took care of me, showed me around, kept me out of trouble. We've stuck together ever since. "No matter what we may do as individuals in badminton, we'd like to really take up doubles seriously. We're thinking in real long-range terms of world class.

"Right now, it's just something we talk about. But if you don't start by talking about it, you'll never get there."

The Paterson brothers are attending the University of British Columbia, Ed in first-year arts and Rolf in first-year commerce.

That's Today's Allan Cup

Beer Party and Handshakes

By FRED CEDERBERG

TORONTO (TNS) — Like the old grey mare, the Allan Cup ain't what it used to be. And never more likely to be. Amen.

Trail Smoke Eaters trimmed Montreal Olympics in what at one time—and not so long ago, either—was hockey's most coveted prize next to the NHL's Stanley Cup.

Now, outside of providing the winner with a trip to the so-called World Championships, it offers nothing but a beer party, jackets, handshakes and a player split if there happens to be any real money in the club kitty.

Last spring, the Galt Terriers conquered the Winnipeg Maroons in a six-game set which looked like an intermediate series compared to the eastern Canada junior A final between St. Michael's and Hamilton.

Then those '61 champs, like the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen before them, went into the world tourney and took it on the chin from the Swedish National entry—despite the fact they were reinforced. Kitchener bowed to Russia and the U.S. in Olympic years.

EVEN DARKER

And the future looks even darker because the Europeans are still improving.

"We're hitting in front of our own goal, checking both ways more than we did—and we've got better legs than your elderly seniors," quoted Arne Stromberg, the Swedes' soft-spoken coach. "It's something we copied from your national hockey leaguers."

There was a day when no foreign coach could have even thought such words, the days of the Kimberly Dynamiters, the Halifax Wolverines, the Moncton Hawks, the Trail Smoke Eaters of long ago, the Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, the Sydney Millionaires who, although they never quite made it, were often bridesmaids.

"Those were the days when the best juniors played senior before they went pro," commented Bob Davidson, head scout of the Stanley Cup-winning Toronto Maple Leafs.

Those were also the days of the great seniors, Bill Durnan, Blink Bellinger, Johnny McCready, Dick Kowcinak, Jo-Jo and one-eyed Tony Grabowski, Jimmy Foster, Grant Warwick, Teddy Oliver, Hamilton's Ab Conick, Clair Shillington and Dillon Brady, Toe Blake, Johnny Acheson, Doug Fritz, Syl Apps—the list is long.

The Allan Cup enjoyed one final, brief taste of glory in 1949 when the Toronto Marlboros—Bob Hassard, Harry Psutka, Danny Lewicki, Ray Tinggren, Flash Hollet, Scotty Mair, Ray Hannigan, George Armstrong—swept to the title. The advent of the Alexander Cup turned the once-powerful senior leagues in western Canada and Quebec into pros—the reason behind the switch was Montreal's desire to force Jean Beliveau to become a Canadian, or so the story goes. And it left intermediate loops.

Senior hockey died then and nobody since has had the decency to bury it.

IWA Protests Port Alberni Rink Location

PORT ALBERNI Location of the proposed curling-skating rink in Recreation Park was protested in a petition presented to council Monday by John Squire, local MLA.

He said 860 names on the petition represented a good, honest expression of opinion and a change in plans for location need not mean the curling club would not have its rink by October.

IWA Local 185 had prepared the petition but did not circulate it, Mr. Squire said. He deplored the fact the epithet "pressure group" had been used in connection with the union's activities in the matter.

"This was a service to the community," he said. "It has stirred up more interest in recreation than I have ever seen here before."

Payments to Towns

Quebec Eyes B.C. Scheme

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said Tuesday a seminary that during a premier's special government committee conference last year he discussed the possibility of equalizing payments to municipalities.

He said in the legislative assembly that during a premier's special government committee conference last year he discussed the possibility of equalizing payments to municipalities.

Mr. Lesage said Mr. Bennett had advised him there were major steps to be taken first, including a province-wide uniform system of assessing private and industrial property.

The premier was replying to Paul Doreau (UN-Montreal-St. Jacques), former Union National municipal affairs minister, who asked when the system might be established.

During the last year of the Liberal government, he said, provincial subsidies amounted to $689,332,000. In the last fiscal year, the Conservative government paid out subsidies of $1,542,687,000.

Hospital insurance grants in 1956-57 were nil, he added. In the last fiscal year, they amounted to more than $283,000,000.

"We found when we took office the Liberals had not one hospital insurance agreement with a single province. We took it on... there's your deficit. The money went to the provinces."

Ancient Bills On Show Today

Original paper money used in Victoria 100 years ago will be featured in a display by Victoria Numismatic Society in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Company today and Thursday.

Banknotes bear the names of Macdonald and Company, a bank that operated on lower Yates Street until closed by a robbery in 1864.

McPhillips' Stand:

Deficits Mean Jobs

Deficit financing was introduced to "put Canadians to work," Progressive Conservative candidate A. DeB. McPhillips told an election meeting at Sir James Douglas School last night.

MEET THE STATE

He said that if a country could go into debt to finance a war, then deficit financing was justified to "meet the state of the economy."

"We feel Canada is just as important as a war," Mr. McPhillips told the audience of 20.

Reviewing the record of the government, he said the deficit was covered by increased provincial subsidies, including grants for provincial hospital insurance schemes.

During the last year of the Liberal government, he said, provincial subsidies amounted to $689,332,000. In the last fiscal year, the Conservative government paid out subsidies of $1,542,687,000.

Hospital insurance grants in 1956-57 were nil, he added. In the last fiscal year, they amounted to more than $283,000,000.

Ardent Twist exponent Elmer "Fats" Hudson, who weighs 315 pounds, stands five-foot nine, disagrees with the many who claim the new dance step is "decadent." "They say that about all new dance fads," says Elmer, who puts on show-stopping rendition with pretty Billy Williams Revue star Clara Bryant twice daily at Jaycee fair and here demonstrates dance to Jaycee-ette Dianne Marshall, 122 Kingham Place. —(Colonist photos)

Jackpot that rivals anything in Reno is offered by Jaycees to Victorians willing to risk 50 cents to make possible $2,000. Trick is to guess amount of money in barrel, carefully guarded by city police officer Const. James Hotchkiss. Here's a hint: There's not less than $2,000—not more than $10,000. Three prizes of $2,000, $1,500 and $500 will be drawn for Saturday night.

Stove Opens Chamber Of 'Horrors'

Housewife Heather Hutson took a long-look at the stove.

"Ugh," she said. Also "heavens" and "goodness." "I've never seen anything like it," said Mrs. Hutson, 646 Admirals Road, stooping to poke inside the oven.

"Makes me glad this is 1962," added the petite employee of B.C. Telephone Co. as she turned away from the "genuine, automatic, self-controlled, all-electric cook stove, vintage 1910."

The stove is part of a housewife's chamber of horrors gathered by the B.C. Hydro to prove to modern woman she never had it so good.

REALLY PROVES

It's billed as the first electric stove in B.C. and, to patrons of the Jaycees Fair who stop at the B.C. Hydro exhibit in Memorial Arena, the stove really proves there's nothing much new under the sun.

For within its hideous, post-Victorian design, it incorporates just about every feature you find on the glistening enamel and chrome wonders that grace the most modern kitchen.

JUST PLUG IT IN

It features an alarm clock timer, automatic shutoff, oven control and—something you don't find on the chromium wonders—it comes on casters so it can be moved to vantage spots throughout the kitchen. Wiring is no problem—just plug it in.

Guardian of the ancient electric treasures which may well form the cornerstone of a museum of early electric home appliances is Bill Stancil, display consultant for B.C. Hydro.

IDEA IN MIND

He started buying up the old relics several years ago with the idea in mind of forming a permanent collection for B.C. Electric.

The display, which collects a healthy crowd each day, is in working order and includes a 1921 wooden washing machine, a 1919 copper washer and a 1911 vacuum cleaner.

The crowning touch is a paddle-winged electric fan that once graced a downtown Victoria saloon—the air-conditioning unit of 1890.

Reluctant Octopus On Show

A live octopus went on display at the Jaycees-Colonist Outdoors show last night, but not before it put up a battle with fisheries exhibit designer David Denbigh.

The octopus was captured yesterday by skindiver Gordon Howard, but didn't want to go into the aquarium tank. It wrapped itself around the arms of Mr. Denbigh and refused to let go, then squirted its defensive ink all over Mr. Denbigh and the tank.

Once in the tank, the octopus tried to devour a live herring.

Today's project is to try and find a wolf eel for the marine aquarium.

B.C. Studies Move Old Courthouse New Museum?

A spokesman for the B.C. Maritime Museum disclosed last night that the government is considering providing new quarters for the museum in the Old Courthouse, Bastion Square.

Commodore John Charles, chairman of the museum board, told the annual meeting preliminary negotiations have been under way for some time and he is optimistic settlement can be reached.

He also disclosed that a formal letter requesting use of the courthouse—vacated earlier this year—had gone forward to the Capital Improvement District Commission. The letter asked the commission to recommend the move to the provincial government, and local municipalities.

FINANCES KEY

Settlement depends on satisfactory financial arrangements being worked out.

Commodore Charles, commanding officer of HMCS Naden, was unanimously re-elected chairman of the board.

Resigns Post

Victoria city traffic engineer, Norman Worsley yesterday unexpectedly resigned his $700-a-month position. He refused any comment, as did other city officials. City engineer James Garnet, in whose department Mr. Worsley worked, said he was "extremely sorry to lose a very capable man."

Meat Inspection Ahead for City

City council yesterday gave preliminary approval to a bylaw requiring inspection of all meat sold in Victoria.

It acted despite a warning from city solicitor T. P. O'Grady that it might not have power to make the bylaw stick.

SUGGESTED DRAFT

The bylaw is the suggested draft supplied by the provincial agriculture department to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and Sidney and the school boards of districts 61, 62 and 63.

Mr. O'Grady told council he had a copy of a legal opinion from Attorney-General Bonner's department that councils have no power to adopt meat inspection bylaws.

MORE RECENT

But before council was a more recent letter from Agriculture Minister Richter, saying Mr. Bonner's department felt councils did have such power.

Greater Victoria Inter-municipal committee later recommended meat inspection to the four municipalities which are members—Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Legal Brief To Decide Liver Beef

Decision on whether the city will launch a prosecution against a butcher who sold unwholesome beef liver recently will likely be made later this week.

"I expect a legal opinion from the city solicitor in the morning and a decision will likely be made in the next few days," Mayor R. B. Wilson said last night.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady was asked to check the possibility of the city prosecuting the butcher after members of the Metropolitan Board of Health were shown seven pounds of confiscated abcess-riddled liver.

No NDP Light Shines On Huge Tory Poster

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

UNFRIENDLY PERSUASION: The federal election war has really started at Campbell River.

The Tories obtained a fine vantage point for a big poster supporting candidate Harry McMillan with a huge arrow pointing to campaign headquarters in a store.

The name was in luminous paint and it was given an added punch by light beams from the neon sign on the Beehive Cafe.

But the proprietor of the cafe, a staunch NDP supporter, wasn't out to help the Tories one little bit.

He switched off his neon sign.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Recreation department's Ron Gadsby is still scratching his head over the seemingly straight interview with an official of the Society for the Promotion of Decency in Animals, broadcast by a San Francisco radio station the other night.

The aim of the society: To dress animals.

Cows should wear aprons, according to this character who was about to open a branch office in Frisco. And horses should wear diapers.

The society believes a lot of people are disturbed because they see naked animals cavorting around the fields as motorists drive past.

The society has its head offices on Fifth Avenue in New York and there are some 50,000 members.

The character explained he had a map with red spots on it—each spot representing a "disaster area" where there were a great number of naked beasts close to highways.

"Cows, for example, have a great deal of insecurity when they are naked," said the official.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER: Centennial fair director Eric Charman and a few other Jaycee types were up at the local television outlet who was about to open a

They were just leaving the studio after the show when they heard the tail end of a commercial, with an enthusiastic announcer reciting: "... come to the Jaycee fair, starting soon."

A spy reports the Jaycees had a sort of bemused look on their faces, as they slowly left the premises.

REVERSED CHARGES: There's a character out at Langford who doesn't care much for bills—which he burns without opening.

Not so long ago he noticed he had another registered letter from a company, which had been bombarding him with letters for months.

He decided to open it. Inside was a lawyer's letter, announcing the man had come into a sizeable inheritance and they'd been trying to tell him the news for six months!

MORNING MURDER: Dog trainer Mike Williams, and a few other drivers coming into town along the Island Highway the other morning, are seething over the action of a heartless type who drove right through a mother mallard duck and her brood without even slowing.

Several of the birds were slaughtered.

RANDOM HARVEST: Spy who attended the evening with Victor Borge Monday reports parking facilities at the Esquimalt Arena are totally inadequate and cars were parked around all the streets as far as the eye could see. At the same time he praised the efficiency of the Esquimalt constabulary for getting things moving quickly once the show ended.

The current issue of Maclean's magazine has a piece about the St. Tropic Sea, a boat allegedly mixed up in piracy and all that. Anyway, the Tropic Sea is a ketch ship to our own EGS Estevan which was built in the same yards at Collingwood, Ont., 50 years ago.

Don't Halt Welfare Society United Churchman Insists

The "welfare society" in Canada must go forward despite opposition, Rev. James R. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church of Canada board of evangelism and social service, said here last night.

Here from Toronto he addressed a public meeting in First United Church sponsored by the B.C. Conference Lay Association.

AT THIS TIME

Making brief reference to opposition by Saskatchewan doctors to the province's medical care plan, Dr. Mutchmor said he didn't want to become embroiled in politics at this time.

He noted, however, the United Church of Canada three times had come out in favor of a national health plan and added: "The welfare society must not be held back; the strong must help the weak."

Dr. Mutchmor said the church's brief to be submitted at the end of this month to the royal commission on health services was compiled by a group which included five doctors and "we received much help from doctors in other parts of the country."

He said the brief paid special attention to the needs of the aged, the needy and the handicapped. He did not disclose what the principal recommendations were to be.

PEACEFUL CHANGE

The hopes of mankind lie in following Christian teachings that the strong help the weak. That peaceful change shall take the place of war, and settling of disputes by negotiation, conciliation and arbitration, the speaker said.

"Isn't that the basis of the United Nations?" said Dr. Mutchmor. "It makes strong sense that we should proclaim the gospel in today's troubled world."

THROUGH SUNDAY

The lay association meetings held throughout yesterday were a prelude to the B.C. Conference of the United Church which opens today and runs through Sunday.

Million-Plus Bylaw To Build Garages

City council yesterday gave preliminary approval to a bylaw allowing it to borrow up to $1,115,000 to finance construction of two offstreet parking garages downtown.

The bylaw gives council power to borrow the money provided it is repaid on or before Dec. 31, 1962.

Nine months ago downtown property owners approved a money bylaw to guarantee the city against loss in the construction and operation of the two garages, one on View Street and the other at Yates and Langley.

That bylaw gave the city

Island Indians To Hold Festival

Vancouver Island Indian bands will pay tribute to Victoria's 100th birthday during a two-day festival of sports and tribal dancing here Sunday and Monday.

It will be the 11th annual staging of the holiday weekend event which draws thousands to Maple Bank Park on the Songhees Indian reserve, off Admirals Road.

Chief John Albany, spokesman for the group, said last night the program for the two-day event is "bigger and better" this year. He said a turnout of 9,000 is needed to make the festival a success.

"We're going all out this year even though we're broke after two years of poor weather which cut down our gate," Chief Albany said.

Chief Edwin Underwood, president of the festival, appealed to the "sportsmanship of visitors to the festival, asking them to enter by the main gate and pay the 50 cents admission charge. He said last year hundreds of visitors "sneaked in by the back door" to avoid paying admission.

Twenty-six Indian bands from Vancouver Island and the mainland will take part in the festival.

Open air mass will be held at Maple Bank Park on opening day, Sunday at 11 a.m. The program will begin at 1 p.m. on both days and continue for about seven hours.

Festival queen and princesses will be chosen. Among innovations this year will be the scheduling of international war canoe races, featuring 11-man teams of paddlers from Washington, B.C. mainland and up-island, at 6 p.m. instead of late in the evening.

Three groups will perform traditional Indian tribal dances. There will be a full program of water sports and field sports events.

Officials said there is ample parking on the reserve if visitors co-operate with the parking committee.

Barbecued salmon and clam chowder, as well as hot dogs and other refreshments, will be served on the grounds throughout the run of the festival.

Mrs. Emil Holm and Mr. James Reside of Victoria wish to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Judith Ann Reside to Mr. Robert Ernest Trickett, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trickett of Victoria. The wedding will take place at 8 p.m. on Saturday, June 2 in St. Aidan's United Church with the Rev. A. MacLeod officiating. — (Chevron Studios)

Executive Says

Women in Business Reach Top by Chance

By JANET KARK

MONTREAL (CP)—How does a woman reach the top in the business world? Usually by chance, says a Montreal woman executive who got there that way.

"Companies don't hire women with the intention of making them executives," says Florence Richards, assistant personnel director of Sun Life Assurance Company's head office in Montreal.

Sometimes, however, a situation arises where a woman could prove her administrative talents and this could be a turning point in her career, paving the way to a top executive post.

Miss Richards' opportunity came when the idea of stenographic pools was first put into practice. In the 1930s when Sun Life decided to centralize stenographic services she was assigned to organize and head two major pools.

MOMENT OF TRUTH

"This was a case where you either fell on your face or made the grade," Miss Richards said. The stenographers, who had previously worked for one man, balked at the new idea of going into pools and the task was a difficult one.

Now, nearly 40 years after joining Sun Life, she is the only woman officer in the company.

Miss Richards' change of female personnel—some 12,000 women—she helps formulate general personnel policies and serves on a job-grading committee.

It takes a woman longer to reach the top—she isn't paid for her potential but for the actual job, Miss Richards feels. But men don't dislike working with women executives, she finds from her own experience. In fact, a sympathetic female ear can be helpful at times in top-level policy making.

"Traditionally, men have been the administrators, and perhaps it is important to choose women supervisors more carefully," but businesses are more ready to accept them than they were a few years ago.

PERSONALITY IS KEY

Administrative talent is a matter of individual personality, not sex, she feels. She doesn't agree with the idea of women not liking to work under other women. This again was a matter of personality.

"We have a number of women supervisors and no more staff problems than with men supervisors."

She does not feel, however, that the time has come when men will readily work under a woman.

"Women are naturally handicapped biologically—men don't hold them back deliberately," Women university graduates wonder why they can't get top jobs yet most who are hired professionally are married within a few years. They usually take time off to raise families, and those years in between "can't be replaced."

HOLLYWOOD — Helen O'Connell has four daughters, a TV show "Here's Hollywood" five days a week and in between times she does some singing.

"With a schedule like that," she declared, sinking into a comfortable chair at tea time, "I have to make every minute count. But it's a challenge and I enjoy it."

"I had good training in band days because we would sometimes go from one town to another in a bus. If we ran into any difficulty at all, I would have to be my own hairdresser, personal maid, manicurist and get up on stage looking as if I had spent a normal amount of time dressing."

"It helps to look at the weather report and decide what you are going to wear. Inspect everything and be sure that it is ready to put on. This means giving a careful once over before putting anything away."

"When things pile up, as they often do," Helen continued, "there is no use becoming frantic. Choose what is most important and do that first."

"Economizing time is a habit. It means knowing how to grab moments of rest while you are waiting for something or someone, and how not to take your problems to bed with you."

"So much more can be accomplished if a person is re-

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 17 and you'll probably think me very stupid, but please tell me how to conduct myself when a fellow in the crowd tells a naughty joke.

I'm fairly popular and don't want to be thought of as a prude. Yet I must confess I feel the blood rush to my face when I hear an off-color joke in a mixed crowd.

Last evening three couples triple-dated. One of the guys told a joke which I thought was pretty raw. Everyone laughed. The other two girls in the crowd almost rolled on the floor. Ten minutes later when we girls went to the powder room I asked them what was so funny about that joke. I didn't understand it. Both girls confessed they didn't understand it either.

I asked them why they laughed so hard. They said because they didn't want the fellows to think they were square. Is this the right attitude?—THE DUMMY.

Dear Dummy: No this is not the right attitude. Fellows lose respect for girls whose motto is "Anything goes."

To begin with, a gentleman doesn't tell off-color jokes in a mixed crowd. Fellows who don't know better should be set straight—and, in plain language.

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes your advice is good.

Other times you sound like a dingbat. Not long ago a woman wrote in about trouble with her relatives. You said "If you can't get along WITH relatives, then get along WITH OUT them."

Well, I can't get along with my husband's sisters worth a darn. I'd love to get along without them, but they won't let me alone.

Every Sunday after church they drop in with their husbands and two carloads of kids. They just expect dinner. We have never been invited to their homes although they DO have stoves and buy groceries. I'm told, I'm not talking about four people. Ann, I mean 11. What can we do now that they've grown accustomed to our place?—ELSTE

Dear Elsie: If you permit people to impose on you this way then you're the dingbat, not me.

Plan to eat out next Sunday after church. (It's got to be cheaper than feeding 11 extra people.) When they complain about not finding you at home, tell them the soup kitchen is permanently closed.

Something Borrowed Grandmother's Ring

A pretty spring wedding was solemnized recently in Esquimalt United Church, when Frances Jean Cooke and Kenneth Steven Kerrone exchanged vows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cooke of Mesachie Lake and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kerrone of Duncan. The Rev. G. H. Turpin performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a satin and wool brocade off-white suit, beige hat and accessories. She carried a bouquet of white freesias and a mauve orchid. Her jewelry, the gift of the groom, was a rhinestone necklace, bracelet and earrings and for "something borrowed" she wore her grandmother's diamond ring.

The only attendant, matron of honor, Mrs. Marie Kerrone, chose a pale blue two-piece dress, hat en tone and white accessories. Her flowers were pink carnations and blue iris.

The groom had his brother Mr. Jim Kerrone as bestman and Mr. Walter Cooke, the bride's brother was usher.

The bride's mother wore a three piece mushroom color suit with shocking pink hat and accessories. A two-piece beige and white dress was chosen by the groom's mother with matching hat and brown accessories.

Following a wedding supper held at the home of Mrs. Louvaine Baillie, Mrs. Kerrone donned a pink top coat for her honeymoon to San Francisco.

Women Keep Quiet Indian Men Talk At Rotary Meeting

By ERNEST MARSHALL HOWSE

A front row of sari-clad ladies, doiled up for a party, makes a more pleasing view than anything I can recall from a Canadian Rotary Club at lunch time. This was but one of the notable features marking a Rotary Club meeting which I recently attended in Ratlam, India.

First of all the meeting followed not lunch, but dinner—a sensible pattern in a land where for many months of the year the wisest policy is to flee from the mid-day sun in a long siesta.

The dinner was served by the Rotarian wives, who habitually both feed their men and remain for the meeting. True, they kept quiet while the men talked—a noteworthy pattern, even in India; but they were there. And as cooks, they were undoubtedly "hot." Anyone feeling a bit exhausted by the day would have been galvanized into life again after a few mouthfuls of attractive, looking but explosively spiced Indian goodies. Personally, as I like seasoned food, I managed by eating discreetly to enjoy my meal.

In general the Ratlam Rotarians were of a pattern with their brothers in Medicine Hat or Omaha. They had their social projects. This evening they had an exciting project. They had sponsored the first "free polio clinic" for Ratlam children. They were greatly and properly elated at its resounding success.

FIRST RADIUM IN AREA

They had not been sure how it would catch on. One of their energetic members, Dr. Bob McClure of Toronto, who had previously brought back to his hospital the first radium in that area for the treatment of cancer, and who had also installed a Canadian dentist—the first Western-trained dentist to practice in the city—had come back from his last furlough with 20,000 doses of oral vaccine for polio, a gift from the Connaught Laboratories of Toronto.

The nurses and the doctors at the mission hospital were quite prepared to give the doses, take the records, arrange for the booster doses, and all the rest. But the Rotarians, who like other educated Indians would welcome the opportunity, were themselves doubtful how many of the illiterate mothers of the poorer classes would bother. So the Ratlam Rotary Club sponsored the clinic, and organized an enthusiastic publicity campaign. And a campaign to reach the illiterate is more exacting in demands than paid advertising.

THRILLED AT SUCCESS

The Rotarians were thrilled at their success. The first day 200 mothers arrived at the hospital, some of them trying to bring along children outside the age limit set for the clinic. The nurses and the doctors were overworked.

Meat Plant May Close

VANCOUVER (CP)—The city's biggest meat packing plant will close this summer unless rail freight rates on cattle moving here from Alberta are reduced.

The changes are subject to the approval of the governments of the carriers concerned.

Garden Notes

Like a Double Daisy

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The upsurge in the popularity of flower-arranging as an art form has given a tremendous fillip to the growing of everlasting flowers, as these are of immense value for home decoration during the winter months. Tastefully arranged in bowls or vases, or better still, in "rustic" wooden baskets or boxes of moss, they make a charming picture in a season when fresh flowers are not always available.

These flowers are not at all difficult, and can be grown in any backyard garden without glass. A short row, perhaps in a section of the vegetable plot, will supply enough dried flowers to keep the most avid flower-arranger busy all winter.

Probably the best known of the everlasting is Helichrysum bracteatum, which shares the English nickname Strawflower with several other species. It grows and grows to about 2½ feet in height, bearing in July a great profusion of flowers rather like double daisies, with stiff, papery petals in a wide range of pastel shades. The seed may go in any time now, preferably in a seed bed of rather sandy loam soil, and the young plants thinned or transplanted to stand 14 inches apart.

The flowers to be saved for winter use should be cut just before they are fully open, tied in smallish bunches, and hung upside down to dry in a cool, airy place—not in the sun, or the petals will be bleached.

Honesty (Lunaria annua) is grown for the sake of its ornamental seed pods which, when stripped to show the silvery centre partition, look particularly handsome in an arrangement of mixed flowers. I suppose it is these silvery discs that give rise to the plant's other nicknames, Silver Dollar Flower, Money Plant and St. Peter's Pence.

Honesty is a most accommodating plant and will grow in almost any kind of soil, in full sunshine or in shade, and even under trees. The flowers may be purple, mauve or white, beautiful enough to justify growing the plant even without the ornamental seed pods. Seeds sown this or next month will bloom and set seed next year. The stems are cut when the seed pods are fully dried and ripened, and when the outer covering will strip off easily. Statice, Acanthium and Rhodanthus are all everlasting that may be sown now and picked when the flowers are just fully opened. The drying off process is the same as with the Helichrysms.

Statice or Sea Lavender is, to my mind, the best of all the everlastings, with feathery plumes of pink, mauve, blue and purple. There is a yellow variety that has me baffled, as I have had no luck at all with it. It can be grown here, for I have seen its yellow plumes on sale in the shops and market stalls many times, but while the other colors grow well for me, I just can't seem to make friends with the yellow one.

The native home of these plants lies in the Mediterranean basin, with the unco-operative yellow statice coming from Algeria, hence they do best under somewhat dry conditions and in well-drained sandy loam soil.

Acanthium and Rhodanthus both bear pink single daisies with a yellow eye. Acanthium is the easiest of the two to grow, but the flowers are not as big as Rhodanthus. Both like a light, fertile soil with a warm, sheltered position out of the wind.

We Can Play Rough, Too

ATHENS — Tourists, as everyone knows, like to be fashionable, and there is no country more fashionable at the moment than Greece. It is, for all intents and purposes, known as "this year's country."

Unfortunately, the Greeks are not used to coping with so many people at one time, and to complicate matters there is a wedding this month between Princess Sophia of Greece and Prince Juan Carlo of Spain, which has made getting a hotel room a royal pain in the neck.

Everyone is benefiting from the tourist business and the Greeks are delicious with joy. Not only does it give them an opportunity to meet so many new people, but in many cases it gives them a chance to participate in the Greek national sport of haggling over prices.

Let it be said that the Greeks have no intention of cheating anyone. But they get their kicks out of asking exorbitant prices, knowing no one in his right mind would agree to pay them. It's just a way of starting a long and pleasurable conversation. We were willing to play the game with the Greek taxi drivers in Athens who always ask a fourth more than they're willing to settle for and we were enjoying the contests, but then we were double-crossed.

One day we gave the taxi driver a 100-drachma note ($3.30) and held out our palm for the change. Instead of change he shook hands with us and wished us a happy Easter. Then he drove off.

You can imagine how upset we were, particularly since we were prepared to haggle for half an hour.

Well, if that's the way they wanted to play in Athens, we said, then we'll play the same way.

The next time we hailed a taxi we said, "How much is the fare to Piraeus?"

The Greek driver sized us up and said, "One hundred and eighty drachmas."

"Okay," we said angrily. "One hundred and eighty drachmas it is."

"I said 180 drachmas," he said, hoping we had misunderstood him. "And I said okay."

He opened the door weakly and muttered to himself. His whole afternoon had been ruined. He didn't know what to tell his wife. The whole family would listen as he was supposed to tell them he asked 180 drachmas and the American said he would pay only 120 drachmas, and then they would all look admiringly at him as he told them how he said 160 drachmas was the minimum and how the American said he would pay 140 and then Papa would tell how he finally agreed on 150, while the family cheered their hero, who knew how to get the best of an American tourist.

But what kind of a story could he tell if he says he asked 180 drachmas and the American paid it? What would his family think of him? He probably asked too low a price in the first place or the American would have haggled. Their father was a failure. He was a loser. He shouldn't even be driving a taxi.

This is what he was muttering, but we wouldn't weaken. One taxi driver had cheated us and therefore all of them must suffer.

Since then we've paid whatever they've asked and the taxi drivers are in despair. Every time they try to haggle with us we thrust another 20 drachmas in their hands. But they have only themselves to blame. If they want to play rough with tourists, we can play rough, too.

Mafia Kills Lucky Role

ROME (NANA)—Cameron Mitchell had himself made up as gangster "Lucky" Luciano and walked all over town looking like Luciano—he wanted the role so badly. But the Mafia, I hear, are against the project, and it may be dropped. Producer Martin Goshch does not have the rights to the story. He had the deal all set for Lucky to sign, flew to Naples to meet him but, before they could sign, Luciano had dropped dead at the airport.

Gina Lollobrigida and husband Dr. Milko Skofic don't appear to be as chummy in public as a happily married couple should be. Like Sammy Davis Jr. and Mai Britt, for instance, who walked all over Rome in the three days they were here for Sammy's television show, hand in hand, oblivious to everything—including the wildly racing cars and taxis, and the dodging pedestrians. . . . Sammy and Mai will be adopting a two-year-old boy any day now to join their 16-month-old daughter. They will also go to Westport, Conn., in the summer, where Sammy will star in The Desperate Hours.

The first people I met in Rome when I arrived at the Grand Hotel were Eleanor Parker, her husband-painter Paul Clemens, and their four children. They were having tea in the lounge. Eleanor is here to star in The Panic Button. "I'm exhausted," she said, "although I had somewhat of a rest on the boat, but have you ever packed and unpacked for four children?"

Well, the mystery of Roddy McDowall getting the much sought-after movie rights to Salinger's classic, Catcher in the Rye, has been solved. He doesn't have them, as I thought, when the story was first given to me by his associate in Hollywood who went to quite elaborate lengths on the matter. Roddy is in Rome with a starring role in Cleopatra. He called me to explain the situation. "I tried," he said, "as many others did, to get Salinger to give me the rights, but like all the others, I failed. Also, being in Cleopatra and not knowing when I will finish my role, I can't make any plans until I do."

Sophia Loren, at the Cannes film festival, discussing her winning of the Oscar: "How lucky we are that we have Americans who think justice and fairness to everyone." Soph should say this to the Europeans who still scrawl on the walls—"Yankee, Go Home."

Pregnant Query

Church Questionnaire For Bride, Groom Defended by Spokesman

TORONTO (UPI)—A United Church spokesman yesterday defended use of a church questionnaire which asks prospective brides and grooms such questions as: "Is the girl or woman pregnant?"

Rev. Ernest Long, secretary of the general council of the United Church of Canada, said the questionnaire was "meant to help the bride and groom solve problems that will later concern them in married life."

The questionnaire was for use of ministers "well-acquainted with counselling procedures," he said.

But some ministers have objected. Rev. Gordon Hunter of Toronto's Ashbury West United Church said: "This is stupid." And Rev. Dr. Bruce Gray of Kew United Church commented: "I don't like this questionnaire."

One minister expressing approval was the secretary of the United Church marriage guidance council, Rev. Dr. Frank Fidler.

The questionnaire covers such topics as: Do you have religious information about birth control? Do you carry any life insurance? Are you a regular user of tobacco? Do you really want to marry this person? Total weekly givings to church?

Dr. Fidler, the church's spokesman on marriage problems, said parishioners were not required to answer all or any of the questions nor does the minister have to ask them

A CHOICE—
A CHANGE—
A CHALLENGE

OTTAWA (CPI)—The Supreme Court of Canada has revised division of costs among three persons involved in court litigation over the will of Stephen Jones, Victoria millionaire who died Oct. 2, 1933.

The three are Elsie Margaret Langmaid and Carol Anne Jones, two grandchildren who received bequests under the will, and Virginia Jean Wallace, Mrs. Wallace was the first wife of the late Howard Jones, son of Stephen Jones, and the mother of the two grandchildren.

WAS THE WIDOW

The courts last year determined that the will barred Mrs. Wallace from being regarded as Howard Jones' widow. They ruled that Howard Jones' second wife, Virginia Lorraine Jones, was the widow within the terms of the will.

A supreme court decision last year upholding a B.C. Supreme Court judgment on distribution under the will provided that Mrs. Wallace and the two grandchildren should receive court costs out of the estate. It said the costs should cover their participation in the B.C. Appeal Court and the Supreme Court of Canada.

ONLY THEIR COSTS

This ruling was varied by the Supreme Court to provide that they receive only their costs in the B.C. Appeal Court. This was done because they were not parties in the action before the Supreme Court.

The 40 guild members will attend services at the cathedral of the Episcopal Church in Seattle.

Conciliation officer R. A. MacDonald of Vancouver has been appointed to handle a contract dispute involving some 2,200 retail food clerks and 10 B.C. chain stores.

A total of 29 new citizens will appear before Judge J. B. Clearidge in a naturalization ceremony at 10 a.m. Thursday at the new courthouse.

Dr. John Heimcken of Santa Ana, Calif., will join old friends at the reunion to be held at the Ingham Hotel.

Other members coming from distant point are Dr. Ralph Smethurst, Walla Walla, Wash.; Pat Riley, San Francisco; Allan McIntosh, La Mirada, Calif.; Harry Boyle, Penikese and W. H. Creech, La Jolla, Calif.

The reunion will start at 6.30 with the sounding of "Fall in" by Dave Donaldson.

The study said daily round-trip ferry service would cost an estimated $333,000 a year.

Officer 'Not Paid' for Gold

Tripe Trips Philip

DENTON, Eng. (UPI) — A local tripe dresser said yesterday Prince Philip insulted his profession. The prince said in Montreal that if newspapers thought his role in the Commonwealth study conference was "tripe," they were entitled to say so.

Robert Holmes, head of a family firm of tripe dressers, said the prince meant "rubbish." Tripe, he said, is a highly-honored dinner table delicacy made of a sheep's stomach lining.

"If I had been in Montreal, I would have shouted 'shame' at the duke," he said.

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj. William Allan Platt, charged with Indochina gold smuggling, said in a statement last year that he made three shipments of gold from Laos to South Viet Nam. The statement was admitted Tuesday as evidence at his court martial. Maj. Platt, 48, has pleaded not guilty to the charge, laid as conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline.

NO COMMISSION

The statement to three other army officers last Nov. 30 in Indochina said that the major shipped gold shipments after making three and "to date, I have received no money or no commission."

Maj. Platt of Cobourg and Picton, Ont., is the fifth Canadian Army man and the first officer to face court martial proceedings on gold and opium smuggling. Three others were sentenced in Indochina and two external affairs employees were suspended.

In other testimony Tuesday, the second day of the court martial, Maj. Platt was said to have been instructed to escort a Madame Tolmer from Laos to South Viet Nam by plane and that en route he was asked to carry a parcel of gold for her.

Li-Col. J. C. Allan, the major's commanding officer in Laos, said he had asked Maj. Platt to escort the woman on instructions from his superiors on the three-nation supervisory commission, which includes Canada.

He replied "I'm not aware of this" when he was asked by civilian lawyer R. K. Laliberty of Ottawa, defending Maj. Platt: "Do you know that on this occasion, he Platt, was asked to carry a parcel of gold to her?"

But the colonel said he believed he recalled Maj. Platt telling him about it later.

He said Madame Tolmer's free passage on the plane to Saigon, bearing Canadian military personnel, had been authorized by a Mr. Sen, an Indian, then chairman of the trace commission in Indochina.

The Platt statement was ruled admissible by the judge advocate, Group Captain J. H. Hollies, after a trial within a trial.

Philip, Conference In Closed Session

MONTREAL (CP) — Prince Philip's Second Commonwealth Study Conference took its deliberations behind closed doors Tuesday at the University of Montreal.

Before retiring into private sessions, the 300 delegates heard addresses by Vincent Massey, former governor-general of Canada, and Dr. Arthur Lewis, vice-chancellor of the University of the West Indies in Kingston, Jamaica.

PHILIP IN CHAIR

Prince Philip was in the chair at the open plenary session, during which Mr. Massey discussed the development of Canadian society, and Dr. Lewis examined problems faced in the evolution of a modern industrial economy.

The delegates—from 34 Commonwealth states and territories—split into three groups to tackle Prince Philip. Mr. Massey and Dr. Lewis on their speeches and discuss points raised in them.

Mr. Massey said Canada is a developing country whose "biggest changes are yet to come."

Canadians have begun "to face the problem of fostering the human resources which we have often neglected in the past."

But the full powers of an industrial society are still before us. . . . We still have it within us to decide what kind of society we are to be and how we may guide the economic and cultural revolution we have begun to face."

'Stoolie' Charge Denied

A witness was accused of being a "stool pigeon" in city magistrate's court yesterday during preliminary hearing of William Stefansson and John N. L. Smith, who elected trial by judge and jury for alleged breaking and entering and theft.

Robert F. Millette, 2623 Rock Bay, said Stefansson had given him a pair of cufflinks and asked whether he could sell them.

PART OF LOOT

The Crown alleges the cufflinks are part of the loot from the breaking and entering of Fairfield Jewellery, 313 Cook, April 9.

"He said he had about $800 worth of stuff he wanted to get rid of," Millette testified. "I was going to sell it, and I thought it would be to my advantage to turn it over to Detective Andrews, city police."

David Hummel, defence counsel for Smith, asked: "Are you what is commonly referred to as a stool pigeon?"

"No," said Millette. "Yes," said one of the two accused men, in a loud whisper.

David Goddard, Robert Munroe and Frank Teddy Hanaka were sentenced to two years each yesterday for the breaking and entering of Dalby's Pharmacy, 3828 Cadboro Bay Road, and Penrhyn Ladies' and Children's Wear, 3826 Cadboro Bay Road, early this month.

Sentences will run concurrently with two-year sentences imposed the previous day in Colwood magistrate's court for breaking and entering View Royal Pharmacy.

Peter Brittain, HMCS Beacon Hill, was fined $250 in Saanich court for impaired driving, as a result of an early-morning chase along Douglas Street at speeds up to 85 miles an hour.

Glen Peter Harley, 35, no fixed address, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary yesterday for passing a forged Rest Haven Hospital cheque for $108.82, May 5.

Magistrate William Oatler in Saanich police court lengthened the sentence at Harley's request, so the latter could continue a course in the tinsmith's trade he took during a previous penitentiary sentence.

Harley had pleaded guilty to two similar charges in city police court, where he comes up for sentence today.

Long Beach Park Deal Kept Secret

Provincial government officials have thrown a curtain of secrecy around a deal which will see land worth $50,000 acquired for a park at Long Beach in exchange for $260,000 worth of timber in Strathcona Park.

The plan was approved by B.C. cabinet yesterday and bare details were outlined in an order-in-council.

But it was learned that Recreation Minister E. C. Westwood and deputy minister David Turner had ordered that nothing could be said about the deal last night.

ANOTHER STEP

It is believed the land transaction is another step towards the creation of an ocean-frontage park the full 10-mile length of Long Beach, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The parks branch already has several park reserves in the Long Beach-Schooner Cove area.

TWO PIECES

Under the terms of the order-in-council the Bedwell River Timber Company offered to exchange two pieces of Long Beach property for timber of equal value.

The value was appraised at $50,000. Timber was offered the company in the Bedwell River area in Strathcona Park.

It was stated that the cutting of the timber in the park would not impair the beauty of the area.

Jobs Pledge For All By Douglas

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Staff Writer

PORT ALBERNI — In an emotion-charged 83-minute speech last night, National Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas told a crowd of 685 his party would put an immediate end to Canadian unemployment.

"We pledge ourselves that if we are elected on the 18th of June we will banish unemployment from the face of this country," said the cocky, bantam-weight ex-premier of Saskatchewan.

MERCY MISSION

Mr. Douglas arrived to address a pre-trained but attentive audience more than an hour late, because his chartered plane first had to fly a mercy mission to Pemberton, B.C.

He said his party's all-embracing unemployment solution of a job for everybody will not only bolster Canada's flagging standard of living but will also:

- Give an NDP government the increased revenue to finance $75-a-month old age pensions for all at 65.

- Provide funds for a government contributory retirement plan.

- Underwrite a national health scheme.

- Spark a long-range program to buy out foreign investors.

Canada needs a planned economy, he said, citing Sweden as an example of what it could do in combination with a socialist democracy.

LONG LABOR PEACE
For two years, he added, Sweden has pushed Canada into third place in the ranks of world living standards and has been devoid of unemployment. It hasn't suffered a strike or major labor dispute for 21 years.

Soon, he warned, West Germany will push Canada into fourth place on the living standard roll.

Universal employment would pour a billion dollars a year into federal coffers, he predicted—enough to finance the NDP's social security program without an increase in taxes.

The $75-a-month pension at 65 years of age would be attained without means test and would be geared to the cost of living index and adjusted as the index rises "... and not just before an election."

Under an NDP government contributory retirement plan, people would retire at 65 with

Australia Safer With A-Umbrella

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies told the House of Representatives yesterday Australia would not enter into any agreement that disbarred nuclear weapons.

He said Australia is not a nuclear power and such an agreement would prevent nuclear powers "on our side" protecting Australia.

U.S. Marines Get Order To Land in Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — At Thailand's request, 1,800 United States Marines came ashore Thursday for the buildup of a Southeast Asia combat force in this key pro-Western country which borders Communist-threatened Laos.

In the vanguard were United States Marines and Air Force jet attack planes sent from bases in the Philippines. They were due here today.

PLANES FIRST

In Washington, the defence department said that marine A-4D jet attack planes and air force F-100 jet fighter bombers will be the first elements reaching Thailand.

The Pentagon did not specify the number of aircraft involved in the squadron of marine Skyhawk planes and air force Super Sabres. Normally, a squadron of this sort numbers between 20 and 25 aircraft.

TROOPS FLEE

From Communist-infested Laos, Royal Lao troops meanwhile continued fleeing across the Thai border in the face of a Red sweep.

But even before the announcement of the impending landing of marines—as requested by Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat—there were signs that Communist rebels in northwest Laos were starting a pull-back from Thailand's border.

And abroad, the big powers carried on top-level diplomatic contacts over the turn of events.

Laos Prince Fears A Second Korea

PARIS (UPI) — Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma said yesterday the failure to form a coalition government in Laos could lead to a possible "second Korea." He said he hoped a coalition government would be formed soon.

"I think a peaceful solution is still possible," Souvanna said. "I hope and pray that a general battle does not break out. It would be a second Korea."

China Grows

TOKYO (UPI) — A Peiping broadcast, monitored here yesterday said Communist China's official Peiping People's Daily stated that China "absolutely cannot remain indifferent to America's threat of intervention in Laos."

Fifty Shot Dead In New Terror

ALGIERS (AP) — Terrorist killing hit an unofficial new high for individual attacks here Tuesday with more than 50 persons dead and at least 22 wounded before 6 p.m. curfew sent people off the streets.

Most of the dead were Moslems, and most of the attacks were blamed on the European Secret Army Organization.

Among the dead were four Moslem women and four Europeans. The deaths by individual attacks surpassed the 48 killed May 2, the day a bomb explosion killed another 62 Moslems for a record 110 dead in the Algiers area.

The new wave of terror, a reaction to Monday's Moslem attacks on Europeans, frightened most Europeans and Moslems off the streets.

Goaded by earlier Secret Army attacks on Moslems, Moslem nationalists slew 17 Europeans and wounded 78 Monday. One aim of the Secret Army in its campaign to block Algerian independence is to provoke

200 Acres Bought

City Gets Land For Green Belt

By PETER BRUTON

Capital Improvement District Commission has been quietly buying up land along the Island Highway since January to provide a green belt for the city.

So far about 200 acres of land has been purchased at a cost of more than $70,000.

The green belt will stretch over much of the land on both sides of the Island Highway between Goldstream Park and Thetis Park.

The land will remain in its natural state forever.

The government-supported CIDC, charged with the beautification of B.C.'s capital city, managed to acquire only half of the property wanted.

REFUSE TO SELL

Some owners refused to sell; others wanted exorbitant prices. But the CIDC is hopeful of getting more and more property in the general area as time goes by.

"Victoria will be one of the few places in North America where drivers can approach the city through natural scenery," said CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown.

TOO LATE

"We should have done this on Douglas Street years ago," added CIDC member L. J. Wallace.

John D Blasted For 'Red Smear'

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin last night blasted Prime Minister John Diefenbaker for inferring that Lester Pearson was soft on communism.

The prime minister was guilty of statements unworthy of any Canadian, said Mr. Martin in a speech to 150 people at Oak Bay Junior High School last night.

'FACES DEFEAT'

"He was demeaning himself and demeaning his office by attacking any man who has served this generation and this country so well as Mr. Pearson," he said. "This is an indication of a man who realizes he faces defeat."

'NOT RECOGNIZED'

Mr. Martin was referring to statements attributed to the prime minister in a speech in Manitoba last week. The prime minister was reported as saying that neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Martin had recognized the problem or the tyranny of the Soviet Union.

The office of prime minister is a treasured dignity and it is incumbent on any who fills that office to live up to its traditions," said Mr. Martin.

He listed dates and speeches back to 1949 to show that Mr. Pearson had consistently

No Railroad Strike McPhillips Pledges

Conservative candidate A. Del. McPhillips promised last night there would be no railroad strike this June.

It was his maiden speech of the current campaign, at Sir James Douglas School.

"There won't be a strike. Our prime minister won't allow it to take place," Mr. McPhillips said. The government would "intervene as they did last time (in 1960, when Prime Minister Diefenbaker "froze" negotiations between non-operating employees and the railway and directed agreement on a wage settlement).

"I have no doubt they (the C.R.T.) will get close to what way, operators."

MONTREAL (CP) — The CNR and representatives of its 10,000 trainmen agreed late Tuesday to meet today to resume talks aimed at averting a strike scheduled to start in only 20 days.

They are asking for—we will not allow a national railroad strike to take place as did the Liberals in 1950," said Mr. McPhillips.

He explained the prime minister would intervene to see a fair settlement was reached, as he did in the case of "the non-ops and the (railway) operators."

The conference itself also met in full session Tuesday but made little headway.

Soviet Delegate Called Deaf, Dreary

GENEVA (Reuters) — British delegate Joseph Godber

Tuesday told his Soviet counterpart Semyon Tsarapkin "to go back to Moscow and get fresh instructions to negotiate seriously" on a nuclear test ban.

Godber said he made the suggestion to Tsarapkin in an attempt to make a positive breakthrough in the "to-and-fro of this futile debate."

"I am discouraged in the extreme," Godber declared. From the Soviet delegate "we get a continuous, dreary monologue. We have not heard a single sentence to carry us forward one-tenth of an inch."

Godber said the United States and Britain have accepted a neutralist plan as a basis for during a session of the three-power nuclear test-ban subcommittee of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Major Jack Dobson told aldermen Monday he and chief officer Gordon Berry will go to Victoria soon to discuss the matter with provincial officials.

CHART PROMISE

Works Minister Chant promised during an election speech here six years ago the courthouse would be started within a year.

Council approved the low bid of $7,978 from Duncan Construction for a fence around the site.

JAVEX-clean diapers are safer

JAVEX purifies and softens diapers to guard against painful diaper rash

Washing and rinsing baby's diapers is not always enough. They may still contain harmful germs, the fabric may be too harsh for baby's tender skin. "Javex" will lift and dissolve non-hygienic residue to give an extra margin of protection and whiteness. Use "Javex" for diapers a mother can trust.

The fabric of this diaper is still looking soft and inviting to baby's tender skin. Soap is residue containing harmful bacteria the eye alone can't detect.

"Javex" has made the fabric of this diaper hygienically clean. Rough residue has been dissolved from the fabric, diaper now safer and more gentle for your baby. Notice how white the fabric is thanks to "Javex".

The wise housewife relies on JAVEX[®] completely.

Ardent Twist exponent Elmer "Fats" Hudson, who weighs 315 pounds, stands five-foot nine, disagrees with the many who claim the new dance step is "decadent." They say that about all new dance fads, says Elmer, who puts on show-stopping rendition with pretty Billy Williams Revue star Clara Bryant twice daily at Jaycee fair and here demonstrates dance to Jaycee-ette Dianne Marshall, 122 Kingham Place. —(Colonist photos)

Jackpot that rivals anything in Reno is offered by Jaycees to Victorians willing to risk 50 cents to make possible $2,000. Trick is to guess amount of money in barrel, carefully guarded by city police officer Const. James Hotchkiss. Here's a hint: There's not less than $2,000—not more than $10,000. Three prizes of $2,000, $1,500 and $500 will be drawn for Saturday night.

Stove Opens Chamber Of 'Horrors'

Housewife Heather Hutson took a long look at the stove.

"Ugh," she said. Also "heavens" and "goodness."

"I've never seen anything like it," said Mrs. Hutson, 646 Admirals Road, stooping to poke inside the oven.

"Makes me glad this is 1962," added the petite employee of B.C. Telephone Co. as she turned away from the "genuine, automatic, self-controlled, all-electric cook stove, vintage 1916."

The stove is part of a housewife's chamber of horrors gathered by the B.C. Hydro to prove to modern woman she never had it so good.

REALLY PROVEN
It's billed as the first electric stove in B.C. and, to patrons of the Jaycees Fair who stop at the B.C. Hydro exhibit in Memorial Arena, the stove really proves there's nothing much new under the sun.

For within its hideous, post-Victorian design, it incorporates just about every feature you find on the glistening enamel and chrome wonders that grace the most modern kitchen.

JUST PLUG IT IN
It features an alarm clock timer, automatic shutoff, oven control and — something you don't find on the chromium wonders — it comes on casters so it can be moved to vantage spots throughout the kitchen. Wiring is no problem — just plug it in.

Guardian of the ancient electric treasures which may well form the cornerstone of a museum of early electric home appliances is Bill Stancil, display consultant for B.C. Hydro.

IDEA IN MIND
He started buying up the old relics several years ago with the idea in mind of forming a permanent collection for B.C. Electric.

The display, which collects a healthy crowd each day, is in working order and includes a 1921 wooden washing machine, a 1919 copper washer and a 1911 vacuum cleaner.

The browned touch is a paddle-winged electric fan that once graced a downtown Victoria saloon—the air-conditioning unit of 1890.

Reluctant Octopus On Show
A live octopus went on display at the Jaycees-Colonist Outdoors show last night, but not before it put up a battle with fisheries exhibitor David Denbigh.

The octopus was captured yesterday by skimmer (Gordon Howard, but didn't want to go into the aquarium tank. It wrapped itself around the arms of Mr. Denbigh and refused to let go, then squirmed its defensive ink all over Mr. Denbigh and the tank.

Once in the tank, the octopus tried to devour a live hermit.

Today's project is to try and find a wolf cat for the marine aquarium.

B.C. Studies Move

Old Courthouse New Museum?

A spokesman for the B.C. Maritime Museum disclosed last night that the government is considering providing new quarters for the museum in the Old Courthouse, Bastion Square.

Commodore John Charles, chairman of the museum board, told the annual meeting preliminary negotiations have been under way for some time and he is optimistic settlement can be reached.

He also disclosed that a formal letter requesting use of the courthouse—vacated earlier this year—had gone forward to the Capital Improvement District Commission. The letter asked the commission to recommend the move to the provincial government and local municipalities.

FINANCES KEY

Settlement depends on satisfactory financial arrangements being worked out. Commodore Charles, commanding officer of HMCS Naden, was unanimously re-elected chairman of the board.

Rite Tonight

New executive members will be installed at a meeting of Glenlake Home and School Association at 8 p.m. today in the school.

Navy 'Open' Saturday

Ships and facilities will be open to the public at HMC Dockyard between 1.30 and 4.30 p.m. Saturday as the Pacific Command holds open house to observe Navy Day. Visitors will also be able to tour the visiting cruiser HMS Belfast.

Resigns Post

Victoria city traffic engineer, Norman Worley yesterday unexpectedly resigned his $700-a-month position. He refused any comment, as did other city officials. City engineer James Garnet, in whose department Mr. Worley worked, said he was "extremely sorry, to lose a very capable man."

Meat Inspection Ahead for City

City council yesterday gave preliminary approval to a bylaw requiring inspection of all meat sold in Victoria.

It acted despite a warning from city solicitor T. P. O'Grady that it might not have power to make the bylaw stick.

SUGGESTED DRAFT

The bylaw is the suggested draft supplied by the provincial agriculture department to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and Sidney and the school boards of districts 61, 62 and 63.

Mr. O'Grady told council he had a copy of a legal opinion from Attorney-General Bonner's department that councils have no power to adopt meat inspection bylaws.

MORE RECENT

But before council was a more recent letter from Agriculture Minister Richter, saying Mr. Bonner's department felt councils did have such power.

Greater Victoria Inter-municipal committee later recommended meat inspection to the four municipalities which are members—Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Game Club Presses Garbage War

CAMPBELL RIVER — The local fish and game club decided Monday to continue its campaign against indiscriminate garbage dumping along countryside roads—and with help.

Members will try to determine who owns unsightly garbage dumps which still spoil outside areas and the RCMP will take action "tactically" to warn these untidy people.

Secretary Mrs. Doris East will ask head forester Larry Ormond if outdoor stoves or special disposal cans can be provided at Mohun and other lakes where anglers gather.

No NDP Light Shines On Huge Tory Poster

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

UNFRIENDLY PERSUA-SION: The federal election was really started at Campbell River.

The Tories obtained a fine vantage point for a big poster supporting candidate Harry McQuillan with a huge arrow pointing to campaign headquarters in a store.

The name was in luminous paint and it was given an added punch by light beaming from the neon sign on the Beehive Cafe.

But the proprietor of the cafe — a slender, high-spirited, was out to help the Tories one little bit.

He switched off his neon sign.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Recreation department's Man Gadsby is still scratching his head over the seemingly straight interview with an official of the Society for the Promotion of Decency in Animals, broadcast by a San Francisco radio station the other night.

The aim of the society: To dress animals.

Cows should wear aprons, according to this character who was about to open a branch office in Frisco. And horses should wear diapers.

The society believes a lot of people are disturbed because they see naked animals strolling around the fields as motorists drive past.

The society has its head offices on Fifth Avenue in New York and there are some 50,000 members.

The character explained he had a map with red spots on it—each spot representing a "disaster area" where there were a great number of naked beasts close to highways.

"Cows, for example, have a great deal of insecurity when they are naked," said the official.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER: Centennial fair director Eric (Charman) and a few other Jaycee types were up at the local television outlet to plug the fair yesterday.

They were just leaving the studio after the show when they heard the tall end of a commercial with an enthusiastic announcer reciting: "... come to the Jaycee fair, starting soon."

A spy reports the Jaycees had a lot of bemused look on their faces, as they slowly left the premises!

REVERSED CHARGES: There's a character out at Langford who doesn't care much for bills—which he burns without opening.

Not so long ago he noticed he had another registered letter from a company which had been bombarding him with letters for months.

He decided to open it. Inside was a lawyer's letter, announcing the man had come into a sizeable inheritance and they'd been trying to tell him the news for six months!

MORNING MURDER: Dog trainer Mike Williams, and a few other drivers coming into town along the Island Highway the other morning, are seething over the action of a heartless type who drove right through a mother mallard duck and her chicks without even slowing.

Several of the birds were slaughtered.

RANDOM HARVEST: Spy who attended the evening with Victor Berge Monday reports parking facilities at the Esquimalt Arena are totally inadequate and cars were parked around all the streets as far as the eye could see.

At the same time he praised the efficiency of the Esquimalt constabulary for getting things moving quickly once the show ended. ... The current issue of Maclean's magazine has a piece about the St. Tropic Sea, a boat allegedly mixed up in piracy and all that. Anyway, the Tropic Sea is a sister ship to our own CGS Estevan which was built in the same yards at Collingwood, Ont., 50 years ago.

IWA Petition Protests Port Alberni Rink Site

PORT ALBERNI—Location of the proposed curling-skating rink in Recreation Park was protested in a petition presented to council Monday by John Squire, local MLA.

He said 980 names on the petition represented a good, honest expression of opinion and a change in plans for location need not mean the curling club would not have its rink by October.

IWA Local 183 had prepared the petition but did not circulate it, Mr. Squire said. He deplored the fact the epithet "pressure group" had been used in connection with the union's activities in the matter.

"This was a service to the community," he said. "It has stirred up more interest in recreation than I have ever seen here before."

Mayor Loran Jordan, gave permission for the petition to be presented to city comptroller Dennis Thain for checking for authenticity of signatures.

A letter to council from the curling club said that, if a delay is foreseen, the membership would probably withdraw its support of the project.

Mayor Jordan reported that, according to the engineer, plans for the building should be ready in another month.

Hillcrest Dispute

Rather Not Work Say 'Snubbed' 18

MFSACHIE LAKE—The 18 Hillcrest Lumber Co. employees who stayed on the job through most of the free bus dispute told the company yesterday they would rather not come back to work until the dispute is settled.

The 18 live here and were not affected when 70 Duncan and Lake Cowichan employees refused to provide their own transportation after the free bus was stopped Jan. 2.

SNUBBED BY OTHERS
But they stopped work early last week after contact loggers were brought in briefly and now a spokesman has told the company the 18 were snubbed by the other loggers involved in the dispute.

"We are sorry indeed that these men don't seem to be able to choose between right and wrong," said a company official. "By now it must be obvious to everyone who is wrong in this controversy and who has been wrong all along the line."

He said the union "will make a fatal mistake" if it assumes the company will re-

Divers Lift Wreck Gun

QUELLET — Members of the local Scuba Club have recovered a three-inch naval gun from the wreck of the federal fisheries patrol ship Thiepsval, which lies in 10 fathoms of water in Barclay Sound.

Divers included Leslie and George Hillier, Raymond Vose, Malcolm Miller and Louis Kruk. The gun was towed here by the Hillier Queen.

The Thiepsval was wrecked in 1932, reportedly while chasing prohibition era rum runners.

Meat Inspection Debate Planned

PORT ALBERNI—The issue of meat inspection in B.C. will be taken up by Ald. William Goddard at the next meeting of the Central Island Board of Health and council is considering a resolution on the same subject for presentation to the Union of B.C. Municipalities, it was learned yesterday.

Island Indians To Hold Festival

Vancouver Island Indian bands will pay tribute to Victoria's 100th birthday during a two-day festival of sports and tribal dancing here Sunday and Monday.

It will be the 11th annual staging of the holiday weekend event which draws thousands to Maple Bank Park on the Songhees Indian reserve, off Admirals Road.

Chief John Albany, spokesman for the group, said that might the program for the two-day event is "bigger and better" this year. He said a turnout of 9,000 is needed to make the festival a success.

"We're going all out this year even though we're broke after two years of poor weather which cut down our gate," Chief Albany said.

Chief Edwin Underwood, president of the festival, appealed to the "sportsmanship" of visitors to the festival, asking them to enter by the main gate and pay the 50 cents admission charge. He said last year hundreds of visitors "sneaked in by the back door" to avoid paying admission.

Twenty-six Indian bands from Vancouver Island and the mainland will take part in the festival.

Open air mass will be held at Maple Bank Park on opening day, Sunday at 11 a.m. The program will begin at 1 p.m. on both days and continue for about seven hours.

Festival queen and princesses will be chosen. Among innovations this year will be the scheduling of international war canoe races, featuring 11-man teams of paddlers from Washington, B.C., Manitoba and upland, at 3 p.m. instead of late in the evening.

Three groups will perform traditional Indian tribal dances. There will be a full program of water sports and field sports events.

Officials said there is ample parking on the reserve if visitors co-operate with the parking committee.

Barbecued salmon and clam chowder, as well as hot dogs and other refreshments, will be served on the grounds throughout the run of the festival.

Liz's Millions 'Lunacy' Cries Angry Stockholder

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sharp Cleopatra was voiced yesterday criticism of actress Elizabeth Taylor at an unruly annual meeting of the 20th Century-Fox stockholders.

But president Spyros P. Skouras asked them to be patient. He said within a week, all Miss Taylor will be needed for is some close-up scenes. That statement brought applause.

During the debate over the picture, which Skouras said would cost $30,000,000, one woman, red-haired Gloria Parker of Brooklyn, nominated Miss Taylor to be a member of the board of directors. She said Miss Taylor was making so much money she ought to be one.

In the balloting, however, Miss Taylor ran far behind the directors' slate proposed by Skouras.

Another woman, Mrs. Irene Martin, of Hollywood, said of the decision to pay stockholders a cash dividend this year.

Skouras reported that 20th Century-Fox lost $22,500,000 last year. But he promised a program of economy, including a voluntary $49,000 cut in his annual $139,000 salary.

"I'm not too proud of myself," he said in presenting the loss figures.

After the formal meeting ended, one unidentified woman stopped Skouras and demanded to know when the "scandal" would be stopped. Skouras told her to be patient and said Cleopatra would gross $150,000,000 when it is released next February.

Stockholders of the film company — which some of them described as "floundering" — also were angry because

Bonus for Ex-Chief Stirs Vancouver Row

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges flew round the chamber at a city council meeting Tuesday as a long battle about a policeman's retirement bonus continued.

An alderman questioned the truthfulness of Mayor Tom Alsbury who in turn defended statements he said he made to council earlier about remuneration that was planned for George Archer, the now-retired police chief.

Mr. Alsbury said he had told council that a bonus was planned for the chief, a point some aldermen questioned Tuesday. "I'll take an oath I did tell," the mayor said.

Officer 'Not Paid' for Gold

Tripe Trips Philip

DENTON, Eng. (UPI) — A local tripe dresser said yesterday that Prince Philip insulted his profession. The prince said in Montreal that if newspapers thought his role in the Commonwealth study conference was "tripe," they were entitled to say so.

Robert Bulmer, head of a family firm of tripe dressers, said the prince meant "tripe." "Tripe," he said, is a highly-humored dinner table delicacy made of a sheep's stomach lining.

"If I had been in Montreal, I would have shouted 'shame' at the duke," he said.

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj. William Allan Platt, charged with Indochina gold smuggling, said in a statement last year that he made three shipments of gold from Laos to South Viet Nam. The statement was admitted Tuesday as evidence at his court martial. Maj. Platt, 48, has pleaded not guilty to the charge, laid as conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline.

NO COMMISSION

The statement to three other army officers last Nov. 30 in Indochina said that the major stopped gold shipments after making three and "to date, I have received no money or no commission."

Maj. Platt of Cobourg and Picton, Ont., is the fifth Canadian Army man and the first officer to face court martial proceedings on gold and opium smuggling. Three others were sentenced in Indochina and two external affairs employees were suspended.

In other testimony Tuesday, the second day of the court martial, Maj. Platt was said to have been instructed to escort a Madame Tolmer from Laos to South Viet Nam by plane and that on route he was asked to carry a parcel of gold for her.

Li-Col. J. C. Allan, the major's commanding officer in Laos, said he had asked Maj. Platt to escort the woman on instructions from his superiors on the three-nation supervisory force commission, which includes Canada.

He replied "I'm not aware of this" when he was asked by civilian lawyer R. K. Laidlaw of Ottawa, defending Maj. Platt: "Do you know that on this occasion, he Platt, was asked to carry a parcel of gold to her?"

But the colonel said he believed he recalled Maj. Platt telling him about it later.

He said Madame Tolmer's free passage on the plane to Saigon, bearing Canadian military personnel, had been authorized by a Mr. Sen, an Indochinese, then chairman of the force commission in Indochina.

The Platt statement was ruled admissible by the judge advocate, Group Captain J. H. Holmes, after a trial within a trial.

Philip, Conference In Closed Session

MONTREAL (CP) — Prince Philip's Second Commonwealth Study Conference took its deliberations behind closed doors Tuesday at the University of Montreal.

Before retiring into private sessions, the 300 delegates heard addresses by Vincent Massey, former governor-general of Canada, and Dr. Arthur Lewis, vice-chancellor of the University of the West Indies in Kingston, Jamaica.

PHILIP IN CHAIR

Prince Philip was in the chair at the open plenary session, during which Mr. Massey discussed the development of Canadian society, and Dr. Lewis examined problems faced in the evolution of a modern industrial economy.

The delegates—from 34 Commonwealth states and territories—split into three groups to tackle Prince Philip, Mr. Massey and Dr. Lewis on their speeches and discuss points raised in them.

Mr. Massey said Canada is a developing country whose "biggest changes are yet to come."

"Canadians have begun to face the problem of fostering the human resources which we have often neglected in the past."

"But the full powers of an industrial society are still before us. . . . We still have it within us to decide what kind of society we are to be and how we may guide the economic and cultural revolution we have begun to face."

'Stoolie' Charge Denied

A witness was accused of being a "stool pigeon" in city magistrate's court yesterday during preliminary hearing of William Stefansson and John N. L. Smith, who elected trial by judge and jury for alleged breaking and entering and theft.

Robert F. Millette, 2623 Rock Bay, said Stefansson had given him a pair of cufflinks and asked whether he could sell them.

PART OF LOOT

The Crown alleges the cufflinks are part of the loot from the breaking and entering of Fairfield Jewelry, 313 Cook, April 9.

"He said he had about $300 worth of stuff he wanted to get rid of," Millette testified. "I was going to sell it, and I thought it would be to my advantage to turn it over to Detective Andrews, city police."

David Hummel, defence counsel for Smith, asked: "Are you what is commonly referred to as a stool pigeon?"

"No," said Millette. "Yes," said one of the two accused men, in a loud whisper.

David Goddard, Robert Munroe and Frank Teddy Hanaka were sentenced to two years each yesterday for the breaking and entering of Dalby's Pharmacy, 3028 Cadboro Bay Road, and Penrhyn Ladies' and Children's Wear, 3030 Cadboro Bay Road, early this month.

Sentences will run concurrently with two-year sentences imposed the previous day in Cowwood magistrate's court for breaking and entering View Royal Pharmacy.

Peter Brittain, HMCS Beacon Hill, was fined $250 in Saanich court for impaired driving, as a result of an early-morning chase along Douglas Street at speeds up to 85 miles an hour.

Glenn Peter Harley, 25, no fixed address, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary yesterday for passing a forged Rest Haven Hospital cheque for $108.82, May 5.

Magistrate William Ostler in Saanich police court lengthened the sentence at Harley's request, so the latter could continue a course in the tin-smith's trade he took during a previous penitentiary sentence.

Harley had pleaded guilty to two similar charges in city police court, where he came up for sentence today.

Long Beach Park Deal Kept Secret

Provincial government officials have thrown a curtain of secrecy around a deal which will see land worth $50,000 acquired for a park at Long Beach in exchange for $260,000 worth of timber in Strathcona Park.

The plan was approved by B.C. cabinet yesterday and bare details were outlined in an order-in-council.

But it was learned that Recreation Minister E. C. Westwood and deputy minister David Turner had ordered that nothing could be said about the deal last night.

ANOTHER STEP

It is believed the land transaction is another step towards the creation of an ocean-frontage park the full 10-mile length of Long Beach, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The parks branch already has several park reserves in the Long Beach-Schooner Cove area.

TWO PIECES

Under the terms of the order-in-council the Bedwell River Timber Company offered to exchange two pieces of Long Beach property for timber of equal value.

The value was appraised at $50,000.

Timber was offered the company in the Bedwell River area in Strathcona Park. It was stated that the cutting of the timber in the park would not impair the beauty of the area.

PORT ALBERNI — In an emotion-charged 83-minute speech last night, National Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas told a crowd of 685 his party would put an immediate end to Canadian unemployment.

"We pledge ourselves that if we are elected on the 18th of June we will banish unemployment from the face of this country," said the cocky, bantam-weight ex-premier of Saskatchewan.

MEANS MISSION

Mr. Douglas arrived to address a restrained but attentive audience more than four hours late, because his chartered plane first had to fly a mercy mission to Pemberton, B.C.

He said his party's all-embracing unemployment solution of a job for everybody will not only bolster Canada's flagging standard of living but will also:

- Give an NDP government the increased revenue to finance $73-a-month old age pensions for all at 65.
- Provide funds for a government contributory retirement plan.
- Underwrite a national health scheme.
- Launch a long-range program to buy out foreign investors.

Canada needs a planned economy, he said, citing Sweden as an example of what it could do in combination with a socialist democracy.

LONG LABOR PACE

For two years, he added, Sweden has pushed Canada in to third place in the ranks of world living standards and has been devoid of unemployment. It hasn't suffered a strike or major labor dispute for 21 years.

Soon, he warned, West Germany will push Canada into fourth place on the living standard roll.

Universal employment would pour a billion dollars a year into federal coffers, he predicted—enough to finance the NDP's social security program without an increase in taxes.

The $73-a-month pension at 65 years of age would be attained without means test and would be geared to the cost of living index and adjusted as the index rises... and not just before an election.

Under an NDP government contributory retirement plan, people would retire at 63 with

U.S. Marines Given Order To Land in Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — At Thailand's request, 1,800 United States Marines came ashore Thursday for the buildup of a Southeast Asia combat force in this key pro-Western country which borders Communist-threatened Laos.

In the vanguard were United States Marines and Air Force jet attack planes sent from bases in the Philippines. They were due here today.

PLANES FIRST

In Washington, the defence department said that marine A-4D jet attack planes and air force F-100 jet fighter bombers will be the first elements reaching Thailand.

The Pentagon did not specify the number of aircraft involved in the squadron of marine Skyhawk planes and air force Super Sabres. Normally, a squadron of this sort numbers between 20 and 25 aircraft.

TROOPS FLEE

From Communist-infested Laos, Royal Laotian troops mean while continued fleeing across the Thai border in the face of a Red sweep.

But even before the announcement of the impending landing of marines, as requested by Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat—there were signs that Communist rebels in northwest Laos were starting a pull-back from Thailand's border.

And abroad, the big powers carried on top-level diplomatic contacts over the turn of events.

Laos Prince Fears A Second Korea

PARIS (UPI) — Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma said yesterday the failure to form a coalition government in Laos could lead to a possible "second Korea." He said he hoped a coalition government would be formed soon.

"I think a peaceful solution is still possible," Souvanna said. "I hope and pray that a general battle does not break out. It would be a second Korea."

China Grouches

TOKYO (UPI) — A Peking broadcast, monitored here yesterday said Communist China's official Peking People's Daily stated that China "absolutely cannot remain indifferent to America's threat of intervention in Laos."

Fifty Shot Dead In New Terror

ALGIERS (AP) — Terrorist killing hit an unofficial new high for individual attacks here Tuesday with more than 50 persons dead and at least 22 wounded before 6 p.m. curfew sent people off the streets.

Most of the dead were Moslems, and most of the attacks were blamed on the European Secret Army Organization. Among the dead were four Moslem women and four Europeans.

The deaths by individual attacks surpass the 48 killed May 2, the day a bomb explosion killed another 31 Moslems in a record 110 dead in the Algerian area.

The new wave of terror, a reaction to Monday's Moslem attacks on Europeans, frightened most Europeans and Moslems off the streets.

Goaded by earlier Secret Army attacks on Moslems, Moslem nationalists slew 17 Europeans and wounded 13 Monday. One aim of the Secret Army in its campaign to block Algerian independence is to provide fresh instructions to negotiate the Moslem population into reprisals.

The Secret Army was out in force after daybreak Tuesday, launching about 50 attacks in Algiers alone.

John D Blasted For 'Red Smear'

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin last night blasted Prime Minister John Diefenbaker for inferring that Lester Pearson was soft on communism.

The prime minister was guilty of statements unworthy of any Canadian, said Mr. Martin in a speech to 150 people at Oak Bay Junior High School last night.

FACES DEFEAT

"He was demeaning himself and demeaning his office by attacking any man who has served this generation and this country so well as Mr. Pearson," he said. "This is an indication of a man who realizes he faces defeat."

'NOT RECOGNIZED'

Mr. Martin was referring to statements attributed to the prime minister in a speech in Manitoba last week. The prime minister was reported as saying that neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Martin had recognized the problem or the tyranny of the Soviet Union.

"The office of prime minister is a treasured dignity and it is incumbent on any who fills that office to live up to its traditions," said Mr. Martin.

He listed dates and speeches back to 1949 to show that Mr. Pearson had consistently

No Railroad Strike McPhillips Pledges

Conservative candidate A. DeB. McPhillips promised last night there would be no railroad strike this June.

It was his maiden speech of the current campaign, at Sir James Douglas School.

"There won't be a strike. Our prime minister won't allow it to take place," Mr. McPhillips said. The government would "intervene as they did last time (in 1960, when Prime Minister Diefenbaker "froze" negotiations between non-operating employees and the railway and directed agreement on a wage settlement).

"I have no doubt they (the C.R.T.) will get close to what

MONTREAL (CP) — The C.N.E. and representatives of its 10,000 trainmen agreed late Tuesday to meet today to resume talks aimed at averting a strike scheduled to start in only 30 days.

They are asking for—we will not allow a national railroad strike to take place as did the Liberals in 1950," said Mr. McPhillips.

He explained the prime minister would intervene in case a fair settlement was reached, as he did in the case of the two-year-old and the railway operators.

Soviet Delegate Called Deaf, Dreary

GENEVA (Reuters) — British delegate Joseph Godber said he was "seriously" on a nuclear test ban.

Godber said he made the suggestion to Tsarapkin in an attempt to make a positive breakthrough in the "no-and-no" of this futile debate.

"I am discouraged in the extreme," Godber declared.

From the Soviet delegate, he got a continuous, dreary monologue. We have not heard a single sentence to carry us forward one-tenth of an inch," Godber said the United States
